THE DEMOCRATIC FIGHT

A Bloodless Battle Waged and Nobody Bruised.

TWEED'S COUP D'ETAT.

The Doors of Tammany Slammed in the Faces of the Majority.

Indignation of the Insulted "Young Democracy."

Meeting at Irving Hall—Speeches by Senator Cramer, Hon. L. D. Kiernan, Henry L. Clinton, Thos. C. Fields and Others.

The grand demonstration which was to have taken place at Tammany Hall last evening, and for which the "Young Democracy" and the adherents of Mr. Tweed have been marshaling their forces for the past week, failed to come off as per announcement. The majority of the Democratic General Committee assembled, but the hall was not opened in consequence of the fear entertained by the Sachems that a disturbance would ensue and the conviction that it was best under the circumstances to have no meeting. The Police were on hand in force, but their services were not required, and the Committee finding that they could not get in quietly stayed out.

The skirmishes, preliminary to the grand contest of the Democracy at Tammany Hall last evening, were principally concluded Saturday night and Sunday was chiefly devoted to getting the columns in order of battle for the morrow. Yesterday at an early hour in the morning the leaders of both factions assembled in their respective head-quarters, Mr. TWEED in his law offices in Duane-street, and Mr. O'BRIEN in the private rooms of the Sheriff's office, and each proceeded to review the field once more. These who were considered doubtful required to be seen again, while those who would not under any circumstances "desert their Mecca-her" were deemed safe enough without reviewing. The Sheriff removed from office JAMES J. CAMPBELL, one of his deputies, who is well known to be a Tweed man.

THE "YOUNG DEMOCRACY."

Sheriff O'BRIEN expressed himself confident, during the early part of the afternoon, that all would go well with the "Young Democracy," and asserted that those whom he had deemed unreliable on Saturday had given assurances that they would place themselves square on the record when the time came for them to act. Then, again, it was said that new accessions were being made to the strength of the party, by men who had held aloof until the last moment, but who were willing at the eleventh hour to join hands with the "Young Democracy" in the battle against the Ring. Mr. O'BRIEN stated that there would not be any disturbance unless it was made by the Tweed party. The "Young Democrats" were going to the meeting as gentlemen, and intended to behave as such. The Police might interfere to prevent the admission of the delegates, and if that was done Mr. O'BRIEN asserted that his friends would quietly retire and let the General Committee go on without them if they could.

It was asserted that no demands would be made upon Mr. TWEED which were not reasonable, and if these were complied with all would go on harmoniously. An explanation of Mr. TWEED's course was looked for by a majority, and he should not hesitate to give it. Mr. O'BRIEN claimed that the members of the party who were identified with him in this movement were among the most respectable that could be found anywhere, and would bear favorable comparison with those who adhered to Mr. TWEED. They were personally popular, and, nevertheless, firm in demanding their rights, and "knowing, dare maintain them."

THE TWEED PARTY.

Mr. TWEED's offices were filled all day by persons anxiously awaiting an interview with him, while the Grand Sachem was closeted in an adjoining room giving audience to personal friends and receiving reports from the various wards in the City. Everything seemed to be conducted in a systematic manner, and it was with that rapidity of execution which is so necessary before a great battle. In the outer room were squads of politicians "buzzing" earnestly in parties of two or three, and apparently waiting for whatever edicts should be issued from the Grand Sachem.

The countenance of these men did not indicate bloodshed, nor was their language violent. They seemed to act as if everything was "cut and dried," and the only thing that was needed was the order to hang up. Occasionally some enthusiastic individual would express himself in a confident way regarding the issue of the night's contest, and seem to think that the hosts of the opposition would be scattered like chaff before the wind when the "Big Injun" spoke. Some volunteered the opinion that to-morrow would see the political guillotine in action, and that those who were holding office and "sitting on the Grand Sachem"—to whom these men were indebted for their political existence—would find their official life cut short.

The "sword of Damocles," which hung suspended over every office-holder in the county, would, it was confidently asserted, cause a grand stampede from the ranks of the "Young Democracy" at the critical moment when the vote was demanded upon the vital question of the hour.

THE SCENES IN THE CITY.

The day was too big with the fate of the Democratic Party to permit of any business being transacted by those of the party that could possibly be dispensed with. The offices of the City and County Government were deserted nearly all day, or, at least, nothing of consequence was done therein. Consultations were held, organizations effected and perfected, and the "weak-kneed" were straightened. The Judges left the bench with court untried, in order to obey the summons of politicians in consultation. Members of the State Legislature were flying about the City all day, visiting their constituents and rallying them for the coming battle and its consequences.

GATHERING OF THE CLANS.

At 5 o'clock in the evening the supper-room at Irving Hall was filled with members of the General Committee who adhered to the Young Democracy, and who represented the majority of the Committee. This place had been chosen as convenient to Tammany, and in order that some effective organization might be had previous to the meeting of the Committee. There were present Senators Creamer, Genet and Norton, Assemblymen Kiernan, Kavanagh, Thos. C. Fields, Flannigan, Carey, Irving, Mitchell and M. C. Murphy, Judges McCunn, Bixby, McQuade, Cox, Hogan, Rode, Quinn, Fowler, Porter and Hartman, Sheriff James O'Brien, Hon. John Morrissey, Hon. Henry L. Clinton, Shephard Knight, John Fox, Coroner Flynn, County Clerk Ulsh, J. Lees, Aldermen Miller, Moore, Howe, Lyons, Beach and Decker, George H. Purser, Supervisor Hayes, Geo. W. Matsell, Street Commissioner, Judge Dodge and others prominent in the councils of the party.

The meeting comprised only those who were members of the General Committee and members of the Press; and was very orderly throughout. Hon. HENRY GENET called the assemblage to order about 8½ o'clock, and nominated Hon. THOS. J. CREAMER for Chairman.

SPEECH OF SENATOR CREAMER.

The Senator said that for the first time in many years there was a Democratic majority in the Legislature, and a great responsibility was thus imposed on the party. Within thirty days the term of the Legislature will expire, and with it the last chance the people will have to restore the rights which have been wrested from the people by the hands of successive Republican Legislatures. It was well we should meet and counsel as to the important duty we have to perform. We have a majority of the Committee, and in Tammany Hall here to-night—a decent and respectable party. We have no hostile feelings toward the other side, but before we go to the Hall it was thought best that we should meet here and consult as to what was best to be done.

Messrs. HENRY L. CLINTON and SHEPHARD KNIGHT were elected Secretaries, and Mr. SEBASTIAN FLANNIGAN, Sergeant-at-Arms. All those who were not members of the General Committee (except the members of the Press) were requested to retire.

The roll of delegates was then called, and as each member answered to his name, it was checked and the total footed up at the conclusion of the call. The result was 174 members out of 218 in the General Committee—showing that the "Young Democracy" were clearly in the majority. After the roll was made some twenty-five members, who were absent in the early part of the meeting, came in, thus swelling the majority. The result was announced with cheers for the "Young Democracy."

Mr. Geo. H. Purser was then interrogated, and he said the programme for the government of the meeting when the General Committee should assemble. He said that, though an old man, he felt on such occasions almost the fire of his youth. In the cause in which the "Young Democracy" are engaged it was proper they should be prudent and wary. They had attempted to meet with who have used all the arts of diplomacy and never failed to resort to fair promises or hard dollars in order to obtain favor. But to the credit of the "Young Democracy" be it stated that, while they could purchase members of Assembly, they could not buy the members of the General Committee, humble though they were, for they were beyond the power of promises or money. Mr. Purser alluded to the resolutions which would be introduced in the General Committee, and said that it was deemed best that instead of the mass of the Committee undertaking to manage the affair it had been deemed advisable that a committee should act as floor managers. Senator CREAMER would offer the resolutions, and Mr. FOX and others would be stationed about the floor to direct the action of the majority of the Committee. We could not, Mr. PURSER said, fail if we stuck to our pledges.

ASKING FOR TICKETS.

Senator NORTON moved that a committee of one from each ward be appointed to go to Tammany Hall and demand from Mr. TWEED tickets of admission to the Hall as he had understood that Police were in charge, and that there might be some difficulty in obtaining admission to Tammany. A committee was appointed, and while it was in consultation Senator CREAMER said that the meeting would be entertained by speeches from some prominent Democrats present, and introduced Hon. LAWRENCE D. KIERNAN, who was received with applause, and said:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND REPRESENTATIVES OF THE DEMOCRACY OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK: I was an humble participator in the scenes which resulted in the disgrace and humiliation of the Democratic Party on last Tuesday in the State Assembly, and I told my associates there at that time that the representatives of that party in the State Legislature would not be satisfied with the verdict which was then given, but that they would appeal from that verdict to the people at the great State when they represented. [Applause.] They, Sir, have appealed from that verdict, and the representatives of the great Democratic Party of the State of New-York are represented in the true and manly virtue which is still left in the party to call upon the people of this great City to stand by them in this trying emergency and our great and revered organization. [Applause.] We, Sir, do not create disunion or disaffection in our old political Alma Mater. We do not intend to entertain a feeling of Democratic principles for the purpose of sowing the seeds of dissatisfaction, but we enter that temple with the solemn and determined resolution that the rights of the people shall not be overthrown by any clique, no matter how potent, or what amount of patronage they may wield, having extorted it from the people. [Applause.] We enter that temple not for the purpose of creating dissension or disaffection, but we enter it as men knowing our rights, and, knowing those rights, dare to maintain them at all hazards. [Applause.] We are told by some of those profound apostles of Democratic principles that the Young Democracy possesses neither their limits nothing but the rough and tag of society. Against these aspersions I shall hurl back in defiance that they possess within their midst none but those who are over-charged with public plunder, and whose strength alone lies in possession of the spoils of their plunder. Who are the leaders of the young Democracy, so-called? Why I refer with pride to the bright list of names which compose our leaders. I refer with pride to the Sheriff of our county, [applause,] who has always been on the side of the people and opposed to oppression and tyranny whether it came from the Republican Party or from a clique of the dissatisfied of the Democratic Party. I refer also with pride to that noble Roman who, when in the State Senate the fortunes of the Democratic Party were darkest, and when the clouds of disappointment overshadowed it, raised his eloquent and potential voice in the halls of the Senate and told his Republican opponents that the time would come, when in the hour of triumph and the hour of victory the Democrats should demand their rights from the majority. I mean THOMAS J. CREAMER; [cheers;] and I need not refer to his no less distinguished, energetic and industrious colleagues, Senators GENET and NORTON. [Continued cheering.] These are men whose names deserve to be forever cherished in the hearts and memories of the people as representatives of the great Democratic Party in the Senate, and yet we are told that this young Democracy possesses no talent or respectability. Why, look around you. See the list of her distinguished citizens, who have been trusted in the positions of Aldermen, Judges, and every other position where the people could elevate them to power, and tell me that its representatives more numerous than those of the other and lesser branch of the Democratic Party. [Applause.] As I said before, we appeal from the verdict of the Legislature, and we appeal to the Democratic Party to-night. We do this in a spirit of conciliation, and in a spirit which is not to be looked upon as factious or disorganizing. We do so, not for the purpose of gaining success in this way, but for the purpose of establishing once for all the right of New-York City to be governed by men chosen by its own people and elected in the usual way. [Applause.] We do so not in a spirit of intimidation or with a desire to browbeat or to baffle in the least the peace and quiet of society—and this wonderful preparation which has been made with these platoons of hired mercenary policemen, who were sent to the entrance of that temple which ought to be sacred to the interests of the Democratic Party, had not better obey the dictates of Superintendent KENNEDY. It is not for us to wage any war of retribution. It is for them, because we have the majority, we have at least twenty-five or thirty majority of the General Committee of Tammany Hall. [Applause.] We are in reality the majority of the Committee, and in the majority we demand that the Committee shall recognize the right of majorities to rule, and recognizing that right, we demand from the State Legislature through their representatives to give back to the City the right of self-government. [Cheers.] We demand the elective Police Commission, an elective Fire Department Commission; we demand that the Board of Aldermen, who have been elected by the people, shall not be interfered with, except by the same tribunal that first called them to power. [applause;] we demand, in a word, that our City shall be placed upon the same footing and on the same equality as every other City of this State, subject to the general law of the State. And now citizens of the true Democracy, I have said more than I intended to say. I will merely add that the hour of your triumph has come, but you must not allow any thing to rattle you either or excite your passions, and in this trying hour, coolness is an essential quality which you must not be found wanting in. You must march with solemn and fixed determination to maintain your rights at all hazards, and insist with your voice and influence that your rights shall be the rights of the Democratic Party, shall be heeded and felt by the Chairman and every member of the Tammany Hall General Committee. [Applause.] Notwithstanding that these men, who are in opposition to the true interests of our people in this City, have used all their exertions and resorted to fraud for the purpose of drawing off some of our Democrats from the support of the Young Democracy, and notwithstanding all the machinations and schemes to which these men have resorted within the last few weeks, and more especially within the past few days, it is my gratifying decision to announce to you here that these schemes have been entirely frustrated, and that we stand by thirty or forty majority above our opponents. [Applause.] With that statement I desire to conclude, reminding you that you must be determined and cool, for upon your determination and coolness depend the ultimate success of this organization. If you can great safety your affairs at Albany in the hands of such men as Senators NORTON, CREAMER and GENET and other true friends of the Assembly. For the rest you must look on your concerns at home, and see that nothing will be lost through your inaction.

Hon. THOMAS C. FIELDS next spoke. Having made some preliminary remarks, he said: I desire to say to you that my exertions in the Legislature and out of it will be characterized in the future as they have been in the past to produce harmony in the Democratic Party. I have been in a position where I have closely examined the two armies as they have stood face to face, and am satisfied that so far as the difference of principles is concerned, it is very slight indeed. I believe any great party or organization to be successful must be controlled and preserved by principle. All principles should be joined in application, and if I stand singly in favor of that law, and that law only, which wipes out all the Republican Commissions in the City of New-York. [Great applause.] I shall favor no law, no charter, or any series of laws, which does not resolve on a general clearing out, because I believe all the Commissions are the creatures of corrupt and improper legislation of the Republican Party. [Applause.] My experience is that diseased humanity produces no pure and healthy child, and corrupt and diseased legislation produces no pure and healthy laws. [Great applause.] Therefore every Commission should be wiped out, and so far as my action is concerned, it will tend to that purpose, and I believe I shall be sustained by the great body of the people of the City of New-York. I believe from my experience of the past three weeks that with careful counsel on the part of our readers, with disorganization and jealousy with that disorganization and judgment which had characterized some heretofore, we can unite upon the side of legislation in a manner satisfactorily to this City and the entire State. Let me say to you if we can do this it is an important thing to accomplish. It is not only the Democracy of the City of New-York who are interested in this discussion and this excitement. It is not only the Democracy of this State but the Democracy of the whole country. It is looking to us, and a more liberal spirit should characterize the leaders, whoever they may be. In the olden time they forgot all her small considerations in the interest of the State. Let that spirit animate them, let the people support them, and when we do become united not only the Democracy of the City but the whole Union will say amen, and be gratified. [Applause.]

Hon. HENRY L. CLINTON said—Fellow-members of the Democratic Party: After the eloquent exposition of the principles which guide the organization to which we belong, and to this part of the organization in particular, there is but little left for me to say. That the Young Democracy of the City of New-York have nobly distinguished themselves by their gallant and heroic action in our Assembly and Senate, no man conversant with the state of political affairs can deny. I cannot use too strong language in commendation of those Senators and members of the Assembly who, from the first moment of the organization of the Legislature, have devoted all their time and energies to the protection and conservation of the Democratic principles for which we have battled for so many years. For many years this City, which is Democratic to the core, had foisted upon her Republican Commission after Commission, and I need not refer to the Senators detailed here endeavors for justice. And when after fifteen years of adversity we at last succeeded in the general election and for once carried all branches of the Government, the heart of the Democratic Party beat with joy at the prospect that they would directly take control of their own Government. Men who grew up with a knowledge of Republican administration, when they went to Albany on the 1st of January in this year, were proud of the position they occupied, which enabled them to deal a death-blow to the Commissions. And to emulate the Democrats Governors in a Democratic State. What was the result? After using all efforts to harmonize the Democratic Party, when the decisive moment arrived on Tuesday last, twenty members from the outside of this State voted against those measures of justice which were proposed, and it was then discovered there was traitors in our ranks. It was a shame and a humiliation to which no Democrat should be subjected. They proceeded in obedience to the behests of those we will name to vote against the Police bill, and the defeat came from themselves. Members from the rural districts who received the support and protection of the City of New-York should be ashamed of their dastardly work of treason, and eternal infamy should be attached to their names. When Democrats in the rural districts betrayed their trust it was time that New-York should take the matter into her own hands, effect of which shall prevent men from ever again perpetrating such a crime in the halls of legislation. [Applause.] Why was New-York City selected that they might wreak their vengeance upon us? Without the aid of the immense majorities of New-York the State could not have been carried, the Democratic Governor could not be elected and they could not obtain a majority in the Senate or Assembly. They leave New-York City to do the work; they leave it to carry the elections, and yet they fasten upon us Republican Commissions. So great has been the humiliation to which by their action that I venture to say no Democrat from the rural districts will dare show his head in the Assembly and claim to be a Democrat, and yet vote against the measures for the destruction of the Republican Commissions. [Applause.] New-York City is more important to the Democratic Party than any State in the whole Union. If a Democratic Legislature is to be elected next Fall, and a Democratic Governor and President of our party, so to maintain ascendency in the future, it will be owing to the action of the Democrats of this great and noble City. [Cheers.] There is no place in the world so thoroughly Democratic, and one thing is certain, that if the Democracy of New-York is true to its principles, if they believe in a Democratic Government and determine on it, they cannot fail of success. [Cheers.] Congress has inaugurated a series of acts usurping the rights of the State. This State, when it was Republican, passed laws depriving us of our rights. But when Democracy believes in appealing to the people, when the leaders in the Senate and the Assembly have proved by their terse terms and demand their support, the people will maintain them. The people are the source of power. They had determined on their course, and they might rest assured that under all circumstances, come what may, come prosperity or adversity, come weal or come woe, sink or swim, survive or perish, the Democracy will never surrender the principles of self-government. [Great applause.]

TAMMANY HALL CLOSED.

It was by this time (8¼ o'clock) discovered that Tammany Hall was closed and locked against the Police. The force of officers inside the building was in command of Capt. CAMERON, and that outside of Inspector WALLING, who both acted under the direct orders of Superintendent KENNEDY. It was understood that the hall was closed by the direction of Mr. TWEED in person. It appears by the following that a meeting of the Sachems was held yesterday afternoon, at which resolutions were passed closing the hall against a meeting of the General Committee for the reasons therein set forth. The following is Mr. TWEED's coup d'état:

AT a meeting of the Council of Sachems of the Tammany Society, held this day (Saturday) at the Grand Wigwam, the 29th day of March, 1870, Mr. JAMES E. NICHOLSON, Father of the Council, Presiding, the following Sachems present: Viz: Sachems Peter Sweeny, Thomas Fitzpatrick, Thomas Cornell, R. B. Roosevelt, E. Ross Cowles, Nathaniel Jarvis, Jr., John J. Bradley, Charles G. Cornell, Isaac Hall and John Dowling; also—the Sachems E. R. Connolly and Geo. W. Ochs, Esq., Secretary of the Tammany Executive Committee, after mature deliberation, unanimously adopted:

Whereas, A call for a Meeting of the General Committee, to be held in Tammany Hall this evening, has been issued by the Executive Committee, for the consideration of measures of legislation relating to the City, but it has transpired that this movement has been originated with Mr. John Montgomery, and the persons who have joined with him for the express object to make an open demonstration against the Democratic Party, and they have conducted themselves in the most unparliamentary and improper manner, and have made open war upon the Democratic Party, and have made open war upon the Sachems of the Committee who refuse to be dictated to by a few individuals who have joined with Mr. Montgomery in his unparliamentary and improper course to Mr. BURLINGAME. I will not dwell on that affair further than to say, while no meeting took place, Mr. BURLINGAME bore himself in a manner so courageous and honorable as to challenge the admiration and regard of the public. From that time he had a national reputation. During the entire term of his service in Congress he was distinguished for his rigid and inflexible adherence to duty, always faithfully representing the interests and convictions of his constituency, yielding and conciliatory where principle was not at stake, but firmer as the rocks of his own New-England home when duty or principle were called in question. Mr. WASHBURNE here commented the review of Mr. BURLINGAME's career. Referring to the latest portion of it, he said: Mr. BURLINGAME's residence in Paris had brought him into relations with large numbers of our countrymen, and many other persons, official and unofficial, who learned to respect and to honor him. It is, therefore, fitting and proper that there should have been manifested an appreciation of his virtues, his talents, his genius and his services. It was here, among so many of his friends, that he fell at home, and he hoped soon to return among us. He often spoke to me of the kindness with which he had been received by the French Government and the personal interest the Emperor had shown in his mission. Though Mr. BURLINGAME died far away from the land of his birth, and further away from the Government that had honored him so much, and which he was serving so well, yet he died in a country the friendship of whose people to the United States has become almost traditional. The snows of Russia did not cool the sympathies of the Court or of the people of St. Petersburg. All that a generous sympathy, all that devoted kindness, all that human skill could do, was done. It is gratifying to know that the wife and oldest son of our departed friend were with him during his sickness, and that his parting hours were soothed by the hand of affection. But who shall dare undertake to measure the extent of that appalling sorrow that has fallen upon that noble and gifted woman who shared the labors and the honors of her distinguished husband, and whose virtues and whose graces charmed alike the domestic circle and the society of courts. And those children left fatherless, but the inheritors of a name to be ever honored and respected, I pause in such a presence, and let us pray God in His infinite mercy to bind up these lacerated hearts. In sadness and in sorrow we come to lay the tribute of our affection upon the green grave of our distinguished countryman and friend. Although he is gone, he shall live in our memories and our esteem.

REMARKS OF EX-GOV. BULLOCK.

The speaker commenced by alluding to Minister BURLINGAME's career in the United States, and spoke of the esteem in which he was held in his native land. He then said: His appointment as the American Minister at China was the beginning of a larger and higher development. Thrown into association with able and accomplished representatives of the great nations of Europe, he had reached a most important stage of his education. First and foremost, he felt that even there, isolated by time and space from his country, he could do much for her unity and honor, much for upholding her in the conflict that was raging through her borders in his relations with that Imperial Power, in his intercourse with the diplomatic associates, in every possible way, by word or deed or even silence, to sustain hopeful expectation in the darker hours of her adversity. He had a duty of vigilance constantly on his hands. Diplomacy is at all times and everywhere on watch and guard. A thought, a word, a look reflected in Ambassador Minister or one of the capitals, might pass through the magic signals of diplomatic communication to the detriment or discouragement of the interest of his country. He has told me, with much and interesting detail, how he was continually on the alert to obtain the latest coming tidings from the war at home—some of which, he knew, only too well, needed a good deal of explanation—and especially to help his friend, Sir FREDERICK BRUCE, to hold his heart on the right side of our issues, which I believe he did to the end. I cannot think of the account he gave to me, less than four years ago, of the fraternal relations which then existed between the Minister of Her Majesty's Government and himself, without the painful reflection that in that brief interval it has been made my melancholy duty to aid in bearing the pall of the former, at his funeral in Boston, and now the more sorrowful duty to pay an unwonted tribute of friendship to the dead. You who are Americans residing abroad know, or ought to know, upon what an elevated plain you are for understanding and honoring your country. At Paris, at St. Petersburg, at Pekin an American citizen is on the height of observation. With no disposition to be arbitrary, with a sense of justice toward other nations, more likely to be fully attained away from home than there, reading, discussing, judging everything that is wafted across the ocean, he becomes the most intelligent and useful interpreter for his country; and if he be true to himself and her, his own improvement and enlargement follows from the study and contemplation. Peculiarly and characteristically was this the effect on the mind of the Minister at China. Beyond this there lay before him the more extended field of inquiry, in the use or his official relation with that Empire. He entered upon it with his wonted zeal and even an attraction of tastes for the study and observation of Oriental life. With a mind fertile with poetic and elementary perceptions, which bore some resemblance to the Oriental, he became an enthusiastic and persevering student in all that pertained to that ancient, mysterious, perhaps misunderstood, and certainly abused people. Their history, arts and poetry—their ancient, modern, and mixed customs—their dynastic successions, domestic habitations, modes of education for public station and private life—these became themes for him as we all know. And during his residence there he grew interested in securing for that country, a wider and more humane policy from other nations, more in accordance with the Christian justice and equality than had before prevailed—encouraging in this labor, and, as far as possible, encouraged by, the British Ambassador. His sentiment of equity, not blunted by long experience in diplomatic art and artifice, guided him in his aspirations for a more liberal and liberal treatment with China; regarding that great Empire and uncounted population as worthy of other dispensations from Christian nations, so called, than those of gunboats, smuggling, opium trading, and the remainder of obsolete and barbarous things. He learned to consider them as more than a mere aggregate; as an ancient and illustrious people, rather than as a prey for the ambition and avarice of the world. In harmony with his judgment toward them, he looked upon himself as a Minister, but still a man. Diplomacy had left him yet the simplicity of his original condition.

That darts severe upon a rising lie."

When, after some four years of residence at that post of duty, he came back to us in America on a vacation, it was manifest that he had grown and developed in the school of such high intellectual and moral opportunity. I think this fact must have impressed every one of his friends who then met him, as it certainly did impress me. He had, we have studied the progress, and bearing of events which had occurred in his own country during his absence, with even a more vivid apprehension than most persons who had been participators in them at home. Far removed from the scene of action, anxiety, pride, championship for her, had made him industrious in his habits, and given him a vigorous comprehension of the national condition and destiny under the triumph which had already been secured. He had acquired also a knowledge of nations and of their relations, of international laws, commercial usages and the spirit of the age, which, he used to say, led all that he had learned, through the scenery of his susceptible imagination, into narrative that was equally interesting and instructive to such as came in contact with him. Those who had formerly estimated him as the favorite rhetorician on the stumping grounds now recognized in him the possession of full and statesmanlike proportions. The war educated many men to greatness in the United States, of whom the names of some readily mount to your lips—first, and without comparison, that of our good and martyred chief of the nation—and among those who, under that tuition of events, extending through four lengthened years, added much to their mental and moral stature, it were an unkind omission to leave out the name of him, whose untimely death we here this evening deplore. The appointment of Mr. BURLINGAME as the representative of China to all the nations was conferred without his seeking, even without the thought of it on his part. Higher distinction has rarely been bestowed on any man in modern times. It was the first instance of the creation of such an Embassy. It came to him from the mature councils governing four hundred millions, and was itself the proof of their knowledge of his fitness, gathered from his past relation with them. After years of commercial controversies, marked sometimes by guerilla aggressions from the sea upon unoffending people, and ending in enforced negotiations, the result of which usually was that all parties had succeeded in baffling one another and themselves,—the rulers of that country made a proffer of mutual acquaintance and understanding with the whole world. And they committed the accomplishment of this into the hands of one who was then a private citizen of the United States, and who was recommended only by the character, knowledge and disposition which they themselves had found in him. I do not forget that the present is not the proper occasion for discussion of the objects, the progress or the results of the Chinese mission; not yet for the inquiries as to how much semblance of justification one and another may have had in their recent disputes—including alike the Junior of British and American traders, one or two ministers who have taken up their sides, and others who have had something, to say, all of whom, for some reason or other, have failed to thwart or to check the success of the work up to the day of the death of the Chief Ambassador. But a few things are obvious and belong to the memory of the dead. He was fully aware one of the great nations of the earth; and we then, if for the time that we should take for granted that our embassy was established in good faith towards the rest; and if there be in any quarters a prejudice which still refuses this concession, then let it be said that the fact has been proved by the Minister himself and the position he obtained. It was also a stage of progress of civilization that the Chinese Empire, stepping over the barriers of centuries, and of the jealousies of nations over the globe to travel in the interests of peace and commerce. The inception of the thing was itself an epoch, which will be historic; and the character of the motive and object has been now clearly confirmed by the correspondence of the embassy, and by the acknowledgment of five leading nations. If there be any still remaining who cannot trust China in the proffer she has made, they may be commended to a reading of the recently published communication of the great Premier of North Germany, whose language of confidence in the purpose of the mission, as an future peaceful and commercial ties of the East with the West, affords evidence that he has not schooled himself so that kind of sagacity which consists of jealousy and distrust. At all events, the Chinese Ambassador himself struck out boldly in the path before him. Disregarding whatever of foreboding proceeded from the old school of diplomatists—some of whom really see birds flying in the right direction,—setting aside, as unfit for this or any age, the doctrine which has since been in substance announced by one who, for a short time only, occupied the office of an American Minister, that Foreign States are properbusiness for the Government of the theories and projects of Christian Nations, Mr. Burlingame started forth proclaiming the high, liberal policy of peace and equality. He sought to introduce the Empire into the family of Governments upon the broad platform of the abandonment or her own exclusiveness, and of the observance by other nations toward her of the laws of international courtesy and faith. Into this undertaking, into the policy, sounding like a trumpet to us, but like a novelty to China, he cast his efforts and means of influence. His thorough acquaintance with his subject and his people, the ardor of his nature, the charm of his manners, and his extraordinary powers of physical endurance. Undoubtedly, fortune—that mystical something, whether a goddess or a star, that is invoked to explain successes which some do not expect and others do not desire,—undoubtedly, fortune favored him with singular partiality in placing him before such a field and such an opportunity. But opportunities do not make the genius of a man nor carry on his work. He matched the favors of fortune with his own resource and resolution. Encountering difficulties which could never surround an envoy to a single Country, in this instance two Countries, in a greater or less degree to be met at all the Courts, he sustained himself with so nice a balance, overcame obstacles by such conviction and persuasion, by such strong and gentle appliances as to have placed his success among the memorable events of his period. Beginning with the United States, where he was welcomed with a double satisfaction, personal to himself and embracing his mission, he found little difficulty in concluding a treaty which he lived to see confirmed by the Government. Preceded in his arrival to England, by certainly no excess of friendliness from the public Press, yet in the Queen and in her administrators of the Foreign Office he met an intelligent comprehension and kindly disposition, which accompanied him with favor to a protracted discussion, and he was dismissed at last with the attainment of his object; in which both the parties had been brought to a full accord. It is known to us how he was received by the Emperor with cordial approval and co-operation in the measures of international justice; and I well remember, how, about this time last year, he glowed in describing the quick and sagacious understanding with which His Majesty grasped the bearings of the whole question submitted, and the wise equivocal liberality with which he decided it. At Stockholm he was welcomed with a similar spirit, and realized with facility the expectations of his Government. I have already alluded to the prompt and cordial manner in which Count Bismarck and the Court of Berlin accepted the basis of the desired policy, making the labor of the Ambassador of brief duration, and his temporary residence in that capital more an ovation than a visit of diplomatic business. He was on the threshold of a like result at St. Petersburg—looking beyond the speedy accomplishment of his task with the great power of the North, to the prospect of similar successes in the nations of southern Europe,—when he was cut off in mid career by one of the inexorable diseases of that stern climate. He was taken away from a rising fame, and before its fulfillment. For conspicuous as was the position he occupied, attracting a general interest in both hemispheres, there was yet before him an assurance of the completion of his great work, and the establishing of his own reputation as the head of an embassy without precedent or comparison in modern diplomacy. But it is a simple fact for the consolation of his friends that he had done sufficient to place him in the list of the honored benefactors of his generation. From the commencement of the task there had been no faltering, no failure. In the face of much hesitation and no little opposition, sometimes of a character more in Great Britain, a constant demand every where for explanation, and positive hostility from jealous and interested persons and classes in China,—he had conducted affairs with a discretion deserving the name and rewarded with the success of relations. His death is not more a grief to friends than it is a common loss to the Empire in the East, and to the peaceful victories he was winning for the commercial and civilized world. In behalf of that Empire he stood for a new dispensation from all Governments. Toward that end he had already secured, not not only the needed concessions from the countries engrossing most of the commerce with China, but the recognition and sanction of the principle by other nations, to the end there should be a common international moral sentiment which might become the tribunal of all. Let us hope that though his hand has vanished from the scene, yet the work shall not be stayed short of the perfect vindication of equality of international rights. But the unit power, the master, is removed.

To his fellow-countrymen his death is peculiarly a bereavement. Endeared to them by the past, stimulating their present pride and gratification by what he was making of himself, and what he was doing for others, he would soon have returned among them, perhaps to receive still additional honors, certainly to join with them in all the delights and all the duties of American citizenship. He was looking forward to that consummation with a light heart, and through his present occupation a school of qualification for the remaining duties at home. How constantly, intensely, exultantly American he was, those of us who saw much of him here bitter days, can well fall to bear witness. There is scarcely one of his fellow-citizens in Paris who will not cherish this memory of him. Here he delighted to be, not so much because of the courtesies of the Court and of diplomatic representations, which he greatly enjoyed, as because in the large body of Americans, resident here for longer or shorter time, he found his country reflected, reproduced. In Paris he also perceived—what we all perceive and do not desire to conceal the mention of—that friendly accord with our country which leaves little for either nation to fear for the future, which is stronger than some ties called kindred, which is traditional, historical, and we hope perpetual. It was a pregnant topic of gratulation with him that every citizen of the United States abroad was a type and impersonation of sovereignty, himself a sovereign. Would all our countrymen, in the stages of travel, more impressible that character of sovereignty as well, cheerfully recognizing whatever of higher civilization may be observed here, but visibly representing at all times and in becoming manner the rightful dignity of an American citizen. Casting forward to the time of his return, he became interested for the part he might bear in the pacifications and reorganizations going on at home. Prominent in the agencies of the revolution which had passed over the face of the country, I cannot doubt he would have become equally eminent in the restoration of peace and the pacisement. Recurring to the banquet we gave to General Dix on the eve of his departure, last Spring, some of you will remember how genially and generously our friend expatiated upon this subject to our country men and women. He remembered all the Delegations from every section of our Union. "We have had," he said, "a great fight, and now let us have a great fraternization." The marks of welcome which greeted the declaration were alike a tribute to the sentiment and to the warm lips of him, who lives it to the car. No spoiled child he, nor a foreign resident—faithful in his training abroad as he had been in the day of trial at home—he was better fitted for influence and power, whether at public post or in private station, when he should go back, than when he came away. A striking characteristic in the composition of the departed was his enthusiasm. It is enthusiasm that is often treated as a light property, but the word is freighted with a noble signification, out of the ancient language from whence it comes to us. Enthusiasm, God within us—in its wrong directions it is delusion, but, in its legitimate uses, no elevated cause or achievement has been carried without it. I have spoken of some personal traits in Mr. BURLINGAME's style of eloquence—for he was an eloquent man—he had shared largely of this quality. But the enthusiastic element pervaded his whole life, an element fire that would not go out till quenched by the damp of death. Undoubtedly under this pressure he, like other men of his temperament, sometimes overspranded on the stage of action. Somebody has defined genius to be the power of thinking of a subject without thinking of one's self. Enthusiastic absorption distinguished him in everything in which he engaged, whether on the platform, or at court, or in private intercourse with friends. When he first came back from China, his narrative and description were vivid with the warm coloring of his own genius; it was flowery, "celestial." Many of you recollect with what glowing manner, when occupied with his last mission, he portrayed Chinese history, civilization and progress. Some of the sanctified objects shaped through the medium of his perception and language. But how few have been enabled to push forward never enterprises affecting the welfare of States, to mould and build up anew the policy of an empire, without being themselves impelled by an extraordinary excitement, which supported and sustained them! It was something like this which took and kept possession of the late Minister from the inception of the embassy to the last hour. When sinking under disease, his mind was turned to the great things which had been done, to the great thing remaining to be done, for the imperial constituency he served so well—for commerce, peace and humanity—and he passed away from his friends on earth with his mission and his duty lingering on his lips. Enthusiasm like that, in any man, becomes solemn and sublime. In him it was likewise a social charm. Few are remembered so tenderly as he—for the sparkle he imparted in whatever circle he [illegible] indeed everything that a lady can require in furnishing or adorning her apartments, to her wardrobe.

The small army of clerks in the employ of A. T. STEWART & Co., were quite busy yesterday responding to the demands of customers, more especially in the millinery department, where some "loves of bonnets" were exhibited and marked at prices so low that purchasers could not fail to be tempted by them.

DOMESTIC TRAINING FOR WOMAN

Meeting at Steinway Hall—Speeches by Mr. and Miss Beecher.

A mass-meeting composed mainly of ladies, was held at Steinway Hall yesterday morning, under the auspices of the American Woman's Educational Association, for the purpose of taking into consideration the claims of that Association to public support and sympathy.

Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER presided. On opening the proceedings he said that he had an address which was written by a woman, Miss CATHARINE E. BEECHER, Secretary of the Society, setting forth the purposes for which the Association was formed, and as his was himself the next best thing to a woman, he had been requested to read it. From this address, which the reverend gentleman proceeded to read, it appears that the objects of the Association are to secure the right and remedy the wrongs of woman by increased educational advantages, especially by both scientific and practical training in domestic and industrial pursuits suitable to her sex; and also to secure to those thus trained as liberal compensation and prac gain in their profession. Scientific and practical knowledge, the address continues, are equally as necessary for woman as for man. Woman is the educator of youth; on her devolves the duty of regulating the expenses of the household of insuring health to its members, of raising dumb animals and preserving them in health. Men have a practical training to fit them for the various avocations of life in which they engage, and millions are invested in preparatory schools and other institutions that have this end in view, while nothing of the kind is ever done for women for the duties, the right performance of which, are of most essential importance to the well-being of society. Painting, music, sculpture, the culture of fruits and flowers, the raising of silk and bees, and all other things which tend to beautify home and render it happy and comfortable, are matters in regard to which woman should be scientifically and practically instructed. She should also be taught as to the duties of the sick chamber, the superintendence of dairies and matters of like character, all of which fall within the scope of her duties, and ought to be confided to her, whereas now, the monopoly of these is given to men. The endowments that are given to institutions for the practical education of men would produce like beneficial effects on women. If there were in each State an university for women, liberally furnished and endowed as are the colleges and professional schools for men, put under the charge of thoroughly and practically educated women Professors, then the young women therein educated would be far more useful to themselves and to society than the vast majority of women now are. A young woman with such a practical education would be more sure of finding support; she would then marry only from a proper motive, and not, as now, merely to be supported. Young girls are now trained as if their only object in life were to get married, and have very little practical knowledge of the duties which the marriage state devolves upon them. Among all the avocations in which women engage there are only two the pursuit of which does not lessen the respectability of woman and her status in society—teaching and keeping boarders. The first of these, to be successful, requires previous training, and the other capacities. Of the 15,000 applications for aid made to the New-York Working Women's Protective Union, not one-half were found fit to enter into any avocation beyond that of a seamstress, owing to the fact that there are no places where women, especially those in the humbler walks of life, may obtain a practical knowledge of the duties that rightfully devolve on them. Much of the crime in our large cities is due to this lack of facility for obtaining this knowledge. There are 20,000 courtezans in the City of New-York, and Boston contains a far greater number, in proportion to its population; and in many of the cases of them, unfortunates their condition is due to the fact that the vocations of life they ought to fill, and would fill, if they had been properly and practically trained, are filled by men. It is also shown that the increase of crime during the past ten years has been much greater among women than among men—a fact which the advocates of free love and the baleful influence of spiritualism (so-called) which are undermining the foundations of the family state. Statistics show that there are many more women than men of marriageable age in New-York City; the sum total being about 120,000; and if we take a calculation for ten years, attributed it will be found that there are about 300,000 women for whom marriage is impossible. The address hopes that religious teachers will take up this subject and enjoin on their hearers, as a Christian duty, the necessity of doing something for alleviating the condition of women and opening up for them avenues of business wherein they may be assured of a comfortable livelihood, and thus lessen the temptations to their fall which beset them on every side. The hope is expressed that the influence of the religious and philanthropic community will be roused to the importance of securing the much-needed education and advantages for woman, the firm founding of which is the object of the Association.

Mr. BEECHER then read the following resolution, expressive of the sense of the meeting, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the best interests of women demand the establishment of institutions for scientific and practical training, to prepare women for the many and difficult duties of life, and that they should be as liberally endowed as are the colleges and professional schools for men.

Miss CATHARINE E. BEECHER then spoke briefly, after which Mr. BEECHER announced that a new Board of Directors of the Association was to be elected, of which notice would be given hereafter, and the meeting then adjourned.

CONVICTED AT LAST

Judge Bedford Doing His Duty—Mr. Donald, the Notorious Emigrant Swindler, Sent to State Prison for Five Years.

PATRICK McDONALD, an emigrant agent, residing at No. 420 Washington-street, whose frequent rascally transactions with immigrants have made his name notorious in the Police Courts, was arraigned in the Court of General Sessions, before Judge BEDFORD, yesterday, on the charge of having stolen $2,500 in gold from JOSEPH BOUTRICK, living at St. Esprit, Canada. The accused, according to his own admission, has been arrested on twelve different occasions on charges of swindling unfortunate emigrants, but he always succeeded in escaping from the clutches of the law, through the influence of his villainy by certain First Ward Democratic politicians, who were finally compelled to abandon him after he had become odious to the Courts and also to the Commissioners of Emigration, the officers of which, he said, had sworn his ruin. He was convicted on the indictment on which he was tried, yesterday, and was subsequently sent to State Prison for five years, by Judge BEDFORD, who spoke of his many acts of wrong in severe terms. His conviction was due, in great part, to Capt. PETTY and Officer FIELDS, of the Fifth Precinct, in the following manner:

When the prisoner was removed from the Court-room, after receiving sentence, he was attended in its progress through Centre-street toward the Tombs, by a crowd of runners, who seemed quite stricken by the unexpected conviction of their chief. McDONALD himself appeared considerably chopfallen at his condition as a convicted and sentenced offender. He conversed anxiously with his counsel as he walked through the street scarcely handcuffed to a fellow-convict. The victimized complainants headed the novel procession, in company with Detective FIELDS, who made the arrest, as they were proceeding to Police Head-quarters to receive the $2,500 in gold taken from McDONALD, and which belonged to them. The conviction of this notorious ticket-swindler will have an excellent effect with the peculiar class he belongs to.

Custom-House Appointments.

The following changes have occurred since March 10, inst.:

Inspectors at $4 per day—W. D. Urnan, vice C. F. Cramer; J. L. Waterhouse, vice Geo. Flewellin; G. J. Sullivan, vice F. S. Means; John Mitchell, vice Geo. W. Packard; E. St. Clair Clark, vice F. W. Armstrong. Superintendent of Customs at Castle Garden—Chas. S. Tunis; salary, $3,000. Clerks at $1,600 per annum—Wm. G. Lee, vice C. S. Tunis, promoted; Harry Burton, vice E. St. Clair Clark, promoted, $1,200. Storekeepers at $4 per day—J. H. Spencer, vice Silas Webber, resigned; J. E. Hunt, vice J. L. Waterhouse, transferred. Night Inspectors at $3 per day—H. C. Cox, vice W. D. Urnan, promoted; E. D. Price, vice John Stinson, promoted. Special Inspectors and Detectives at $4 per day—Mark Lanigan, J. H. Platt, S. T. Buckley, A. F. Adams, R. Fidessi, F. W. Ellis.

Transfers of Police Captains—Dismissals From the Department.

At a meeting of the Board of Police held yesterday afternoon, at which Commissioners BOSWORTH, BRENNAN and MATSELL were present, the following transfers of Captains were made: CHAS. ULMAR, from the Third Precinct to the Thirteenth; JOHN R. DILMONT, from the Eleventh Precinct to the Third, and THEODORE R. BENNETT, from the Thirteenth Precinct to the Eleventh. As two of these Captains are Democrats, it is supposed that the changes have been induced in some way by the war raging in the camp of Tammany, but nothing definite was learned upon this point, as the Commissioners merely announced the transfers and gave no reasons for making them. The Board, at the meeting yesterday, also dismissed the following patrolmen: GEORGE SCHOTTLER, Fifteenth Precinct; CARPENTER BROWN, Twenty-eighth Precinct, and BLASIUS W. PRINDLE, Fourth Precinct.

VANDERBILT AND HEIR.

The Motion to Dismiss the Complaint Denied—A Further Adjournment.

The trial of the case of The Erie Railway vs. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, which was commenced weeks before last and then suspended until the 28th inst., was resumed yesterday at the Supreme Court Special Term, before Judges BARNARD. The Court-room, as hitherto, was filled to excess. D. D. Field, and E. D. SHERMAN appeared for the Erie Company, and Messrs. Charles A. Beach, William A. Beach, Ex-Judge Noah Davis, John E. Burrill, and Hiram P. Clark, for Mr. VANDERBILT.

At the time of the adjournment of the case week before last, Mr. BEACH had made a motion on the part of Mr. VANDERBILT to dismiss the complaint, at which time he spoke at length in behalf of his motion.

Mr. DUDLEY FIELD answered him, yesterday, in a brief speech. He contended that all the allegations of the complaint, which, by the answer, were put in issue, had been proved. The case, therefore, stands as it would have stood if the defendant had demurred, and the Court had thereby been asked to consider the facts presented. At the opening of the case the defendant moved to dismiss the complaint on the ground that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and this motion was denied. The present motion is but a repetition of that and should be denied. Counsel said his argument was based on the ground that the whole gravamen of the defense is based upon the assumption that the directors of a corporation are identical with the corporation itself. They had been told that because the directors assented to the payment of this money to Mr. VANDERBILT with knowledge of the circumstances, that therefore the corporation is estopped from objecting to the transaction. Nothing, he said, was clearer in law than that the directors are not identical with the corporation, that they are merely its agents, and that the corporation may repudiate their acts and rescind their contracts, in precisely the same cases in which a merchant may repudiate the acts of his managing clerk. It is equally well settled that directors stand in a position of trust, of which all the world has notice, and that no one who enters into contract with them, which he knows to be on their part in violation of their trust, can enforce such a contract against the corporation, or retain any money or other property conveyed to him by such persons in breach of trust. These principles applied to this case, the question arises, has a breach of trust been proved on the part of the directors, and a countenance therein, for his own benefit, been proved on the part of Mr. VANDERBILT? It is proved that several suits were commenced by persons claiming to be stockholders or directors of the Erie Company, and two proceedings by the Attorney-General, in one of these cases the Company was made a party defendant. In all of them it was the professed object of the plaintiffs to prevent the Company from being defrauded by its officers. It was proved that Mr. VANDERBILT declared that he controlled these suits, and said that they would never be withdrawn until he was paid; that he promised to withdraw them upon receiving $3,500,000 in exchange for fifty thousand shares of Erie stock, and a further payment of $1,000,000 for his previous losses in a gambling pool. This offer was accepted by the Erie directors at the urgent solicitation of Mr. FISK, President of the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad Company as well as of the Erie Railway Company; and it is also proved that he made it a part of the one general arrangement that the Erie Railway Company should buy $6,000,000 of Boston, Hartford and Erie Company's bonds at eighty, and guarantee their payment, and that Mr. VANDERBILT should take $1,250,000 of these bonds in the place of the $1,000,000 cash. Thus, said counsel, it appears that Mr. VANDERBILT asked and received $3,500,000 in cash and $1,500,000 in bonds from the treasury of the Erie Railway Company; as a consideration for allowing that Company to be defrauded by its directors, and for withdrawing the suits which, in their nature, could only be beneficial to the Company and prejudicial to DREW and ELDRIDGE, the very persons with whom he made the negotiation and whose malfeasance he sought to expose. The plaintiff, he said, was entitled to recover in this action on three grounds; want of consideration, duress and fraud. In conclusion, Mr. FIELD answered some of the remarks which had been made by Mr. BEACH in opening the argument for the dismissal of the complaint. He pronounced the charge of growing terms of the enterprise and public spirit of Commodore VANDERBILT, but he (FIELD) could say fearlessly that this same Commodore was not without an unsullied reputation in this community. The Erie Company was by no means the first great corporation he had seen, that had stretched his iron hand or seized in his iron grasp. He had, it is true, an enduring monument in St. John's Park, but he had no Cooper Institute, no Girard College, no Smithsonian Institution to point out to the world his unselfish nature, or his self-sacrificing spirit for the good of mankind.

Immediately after Mr. FIELD concluded, Judge BARNARD said the motion which has been made to dismiss the complaint is denied.

Ex-Judge DAVIS said they had been taken by surprise by this announcement of the decision of the motion, and asked if the defense were not entitled to a reply.

Judge BARNARD—Oh yes, certainly, you are entitled to it; you can reply now, if you wish so, when I have made my decision.

Justice DAVIS said that he and his associates had no idea that the motion would be decided before they had had an opportunity to reply.

Judge BARNARD replied that from all he could see, he came to the conclusion that Mr. FIELD's speech was the proper one to be made.

Mr. BEACH said they had been taken greatly by surprise by the premature announcement of the decision. He was, however, disposed to acquiesce. He did not think it useful or proper to reply after the Court had decided. But what he would respectfully ask was that the Court should have some grounds on which the decision was based, so that they could use them on appeal.

Judge BARNARD replied that there was evidence for the plaintiff sufficient to go to a jury, in case it were a jury trial, and hence he thought it not right to rescind the decision.

After further discussion the hearing was postponed to the 26th of April next.

Issuers of Twenty Dollar Counterfeits.

In Brooklyn yesterday, at the United States Court, Eastern District, District-Attorney PARKER had three counterfeit twenty dollar bills brought to him by different parties. During the previous week other cases had put into his possession, and he is instituting proceedings against the parties who have put them in circulation. As yet the information has been of too imperfect a kind to warrant any action upon it, the unfortunate recipients being in most cases unable to bring the persons decidedly home. The notes are evidently taken from the same plate, and are remarkably well engraved. The name of the bank differs in every case, this portion of the plate being evidently left blank and various names introduced so as better to avoid detection. The National Shoe and Leather and National Bank of Commerce are among the names borne by the counterfeit notes. The only noticeable blemish in the notes is a slightly blotted appearance in the vignettes and an inferiority in the quality of paper. There can be no doubt that a number of these are in circulation and the public cannot be too steadily on their guard against them.

Board of Assistant Aldermen.

The Assistant Aldermen met at 2 P. M. yesterday, Mr. REILLY in the chair.

The counsel to the Corporation was directed to take the necessary legal measures to have Canal-street, between Mott and Mulberry streets, widened and straightened on the north side.

The salaries of the Assistant Librarian and the messenger to the Librarian were fixed at $1,500 per annum.

A resolution from the other Board was concurred in, empowering the appointment of clerks to prepare maps of all street openings, widenings, &c., the salaries paid them to be the same as that now paid the Engrossing Clerk of the Board of Aldermen, ($2,000.)

The Board then adjourned to Thursday next.

Inauguration of the New Armory at Williamsburg.

The handsome building at the corner of Stagg-street and Bushwick Boulevard, Williamsburg, was opened yesterday evening by a promenade concert of the Twenty-eighth Infantry National Guard State New-York, commanded by Col. BUNGER. The building has been about five months in progress, and is in all its details and fittings admirably fitted for the purposes of an armory. The style is Renaissance, the bases are of granite, and the superstructure of Philadelphia bricks, filled in with Nova Scotia stone trimmings. Its length on Bushwick-avenue is 125 feet, and on Stagg-street 100 feet. The tower, which rises at the corner above the main vestibule, forms a very striking feature in the building. It is 70 feet in height, and has at the top an open gallery surrounded by a balustrade, from which a very extensive view can be obtained. The main hall to be used as a place of drill and a ball or reception room is on the first floor, and is a very handsome apartment. It measures 80 feet by 64 feet on the floor, and is 21 feet in height. At a convenient elevation, it is surrounded by a gallery for musicians and spectators. Three large circular gas reflectors almost fill the slightly-vaulted roof, and shed a blaze of light below. Immediately under the room and occupying the whole of the building in other directions, is feet in height, with a floor of Scrimshaw composite pavement. This is intended for artillery and cavalry drill. On both floors and round the main apartments are grouped smaller rooms, officers' bureaus, Company rooms, &c. The basement is chiefly occupied by the apparatus for heating the building. A tunnel-like stone gallery 50 feet in length, situated here, will probably be used for shooting practice.

A marble slab in the entrance hall bears the following names of those associated with the erection of the building: Building Committee, JOHN L. MESSERSMITH, MARVIN CHASE, WM. J. CRAFTS; architects, MINDELL & THOMPSON; contractor, JAMES DUFFY; carpenter, E. GALLAGHER; stone-cutter, WM. FARRATT. The amount of the expenditure

CURRENT NOTES.

A Portland paper told the truth that Friday was Humiliation Day.

Canada has sent 100 packages of butter to British Columbia, via San Francisco.

Virginia papers lament because the name of Judge JOHNSON, of their Court of Appeals, was printed W. T. JOHNSON in the Northern papers.

Amatoricide is the latest word coined by the murderers of the English (and Latin) language. It comes from Boston.

The latest reports are that the grain fields throughout the middle and northern parts of California are very promising.

One of the passengers on the wrecked steamer Golden City has sued the Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company for $10,000 damages, for the privations he endured.

Prisoners in the Chicago jail complain that when lying in their cells at night they can feel the building tremble and hear the cracking of the walls.

Columbus, Ga., which now has two cotton mills running thirty thousand spindles, is to have another running twenty thousand spindles.

The evils of bad example were shown in Albany on Friday, when a boy was sent to jail for forgery, in altering an order for eight cents to eighty cents.

A Columbus (Ga.) paper rejoices at the occurrence of a foot-race in that city because it "sent a ripple athwart the sea of general stagnation."

The Cities of the Saints—St. Louis, St. Joseph, St. Paul and Great Salt Lake. All are monomers. Cincinnati is more appropriately named.

Rhode Island has at last abolished imprisonment for debt. The vote in the House was 56 yeas to 9 nays. It might be interesting to know the antecedents of the two who voted no.

A young lady while skating at the rink in Augusta, Ga., on Thursday last, fell, and, as a local paper says, in her efforts to recover herself, her forehead was thrown in contact with her arm, and painfully cut with her bracelet.

The California Legislature has Committees on the culture of the grape, who are very diligent in collecting samples of wine from all parts of the State, and it is to be supposed faithfully and conscientiously test them.

Last week an old man and his son were burned to death in Dunleith, Iowa, a woman and her child were burned to death in Cleveland, Ohio, and an old man and his wife were murdered and their bodies burned in their house, in Tompkins County, this State.

A Montreal paper says that as extensive manufacturers in Canada are able to pay all their household and personal expenses out of the discount on silver, which they purchase to pay at par to their employes, it is natural that they should be strongly in favor of the present depreciated currency.

A Michigan boy who was a short time since sent to the State Reform School, was discharged on account of good conduct, and upon his return home found his father and mother both drunk and engaged in a fierce quarrel. He interfered, was pretty severely pummeled, and turned out of doors. On Friday he applied to the officer of the institution for readmission.

The Chicago policemen are supplied with poisoned beef for the especial advantage of stray dogs, and it is known among them as "lunch." On Friday night, as the squad was going out, they were told to "take their lunch," and a new member very nearly met his death through misunderstanding of the term. It made him very, very sick.

HENRY W. LONGFELLOW, AMOS A. LAWRENCE and others have recently purchased about seventy acres of flats upon Charles River, in North Brighton, Mass., nearly opposite the Cambridge Gas Works, and running for nearly a mile along the banks of the river, intending, it is said, to improve the property in connection with Harvard College, filling it up for boating and other purposes.

At the close of Friday's session of the trial growing out of the municipal troubles in Richmond, Ex-Gov. HENRY A. WISE said "the other side seemed determined to force upon him the reputation of being long winded. One gentleman had sentenced him three days. Well, if he had to go through that much he would want time to gather himself." He asked for an adjournment until Monday morning, which the Judge granted.

Gen. ROBERT E. LEE is going South for the benefit of his health, intending to be gone about a month, and to pass most of the time in Savannah. The Richmond Whig says: "He will stop in Warrenton, N. C., on his route, to revisit the grave of a daughter who died near that place during the war. This relaxation from the routine of college duties, with the change of scenery and travel, will no doubt prove of benefit to his health."

The San Francisco Alta is responsible for this statement: "A crab, measuring thirteen feet from point to point of claws, and weighing some forty pounds, has been brought to this city from Yokohama, by the last steamer. It was obtained by a gentleman from some Japanese fishermen, who captured it last month, upon the wreck of the United States corvette Oneida, recently sunk in the Bay of Kanagawa, by collision with the steamer Bentley. The formation of the legs, claws, carapace and mouth present a marked difference from those of the common crab, the mouth having protruding tusks, and the end of the claws being armed with rows of teeth."

"A scar on her forehead" has reunited relatives after forty years' separation. A paper in Michigan tells the story, and it is in this effect: "In 1829, a little girl four years old, now Mrs. BROMLEY, of Ovid, Mich., was stolen from her friends in Malaska, C. W., and brought to this State, where she lived in a family to which she supposed she belonged, until within the past three years. During the rebellion she married a volunteer, and at its close they settled in Wisconsin, where her husband died. She removed to Ovid, and becoming aware of the mystery attending her family connections, enlisted the services of Mr. ALDRICH, of that place, who, in traveling for her through Canada in 1869, succeeded in finding a brother, by whom he was enabled to reach two other brothers and two sisters. The oldest of the latter visited Ovid on the 11th inst., and discovered a scar on the right side of her head, which was made when they were both children, and which she stated would be found there if she were indeed her lost sister."

Another Whiskey Raid in Brooklyn—Almost a Riot.

The illicit distillers of the Fifth Ward of of the City of Brooklyn have been left to enjoy about four months of comparative tranquility. Yesterday morning the truce was broken, and a select band of the defenders of law and order and revenue duties were quietly marshaled and marched forth to receive the glorious of the memorable 6d of December. The hopes of slaying and executing the campaign is due to Assistant-Assessor JAMES B. WAGE, of the Third Internal Revenue District. He was aided by other Assistant Assessors, by United States marshals, commanded by Col. BROOKS, and about half a dozen policemen from the Forty-second Precinct, under Roundsman PHELAN. The muster was made at the Navy-yard, between 9 and 10 o'clock organization granted by the county to cover the expense of the ceremonies, which will be very heavy, and the expenditure will almost exactly correspond with the sum.

The preparation of years for opening was held in the large drill-room, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion with many shields and mottoes. A large array of military and civil guests had complied with the invitations issued by Col. Bumstead, and the members of the regiment and their lady friends made a very brilliant assemblage. Viewed from the elevated stalleries, the scene was of the most dazzling description, the rich blending of military costumes with the elegant array of female toilets being just sufficiently toned down to lend the sober garb of the civilians prominent to enhance and harmonize the combined effect. Among the invited military guests were Gens. Woodward, Dakin, Meseroole, Louis Burger, Ward and Benedict; Cols. Lay, Forbes, De Peyster, Pratt, Greasy, the staff of the Committee of General Arrangements for the Encampment, Supervisor Wills, Col. Burger, Major Chenoler and Capt. Wasdell. The inauguration ceremonies formed a distinct and feature of the proceedings of the evening, and were accompanied by a variety of congratulatory speeches. A select programme of dancing was afterward got through as the guests of the band of the regiment, under the leadership of Mr. Farmer Franklin, and the company reluctantly dispersed at a late hour.

The New Fire-Alarm Telegraph—Inauguration of the System Yesterday.

At noon yesterday the new fire-alarm telegraph went into operation in all that part of the City south of Fourteenth-street, where the street-signal boxes are ready for use, and from which all alarms of fire within that portion of the City will hereafter be sent. But the change affects the entire City so far as the code of fire signals is concerned, and all persons interested in ascertaining the locality of a fire will do well to remember that an entirely new code of signals is now in use. To show how entirely different it is from the old formerly in force, it may be well to say that the number 27 now indicates the north-west corner of Sixth-avenue and Fourteenth-street, and under the old code the same signal indicated Ninth-avenue and Fifteenth-street. It is apparent that those who do not desire to beledwidely astray should at once provide themselves with the new code.

A full description of the street boxes and other exterior appliances of the Fire Telegraph has been heretofore published in The Times. The system of telegraphy, which is the foundation of this Fire Telegraph, is called the Central Office System of the American Fire Alarm Telegraph, but its special adaptation to the requirements of this Metropolis, the machines to carry out the modified system, the batteries, the automatic street boxes, the stations and signals of CHARLES T. CHESTER, of the firm of CHARLES T. & J. H. CHESTER, contractors for the construction, under whom the electrical corps have erected and constructed the apparatus. The survey and construction of lines, involving immense labor, has been superintended by Col. Spencer Cone, of the Engineer Corps, who served during the war in the Army of the Potomac.

MONDAY, March 25—P. M.

In reference to Washington affairs, as bearing upon the Currency and the Public Credit, we believe it may be taken for granted, all rumors, present or prospective, to the contrary notwithstanding: First, that no Funding bill will be passed to disturb the Greenback Legal Tenders. Second, that no Funding bill will be suffered to interfere injuriously with the National Banks. Third, that no part of the Interest on the Public Debt will ever be paid abroad. Fourth, that the only funding measure likely to be authorized by Congress will be confined to the substitution of New Stocks, bearing 5 or 4½ or 4 ⅌ cent, for the present 6 ⅌ cents known as 5-20s, either by voluntary exchange on the part of the holders of the latter, or by the sale of the New Stocks at par in Gold, and the application of the proceeds to paying off the 5-20s at par in Gold. Fifth, that no experimental legislation will be permitted in regard to either early or late Specie payments. Sixth, that no other payments in redemption of National Bank Notes or National Bank Deposits will be imposed upon, or required of, the National Banks than in Greenbacks, this being the recognized Legal Tender standard for all debts, present, or prospective, or retrospective, to or from individuals and corporations, including the National Banks. Seventh, that the recent decision of Chief-Justice CHASE and the accidental majority of the Supreme Court against the Greenbacks as Legal Tender for old obligations dating before Feb. 25, 1862, will assuredly be reversed by the full Bench. Eighth, that specific contracts made payable in Gold will continue to be recognized and enforced according to their tenor, but no specific promise or pledge will be entered into by Congress to redeem Greenbacks, already a Legal Tender, in Gold, although the difference between the two, by reason of the improved credit of the Government and the condition, for the time being, of the Foreign Exchanges may be equalized.

In the foreign Exchanges today the rates were firm on England at 108½@109½ ⅌ cent, [illegible] on France [illegible] the rates of Gold were at 111½@[illegible] ⅌ cent. ⅌ annum on loans, and dull to the Banks and [

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The Tours Court has sentenced Prince BONAPARTE to pay the family of VICTOR NOIR 25,000 francs, and the expenses of the civil suit. ....In the French Senate, yesterday, OLLIVIER read the project of a Senatus Consultum, drawn up in accordance with the Emperor's views. It makes important changes, dividing the legislative powers between the Emperor, Corps Legislatif, and the Senate. The latter body is to number one-third less than the Chamber of Deputies, and former articles giving the constituent power to the Senate are abrogated. No change can henceforth be made in the Constitution except by the voice of the people on the proposal of the Emperor....The reply of Cardinal ANTONELLI to the dispatch of M. DARU denies, it is said, the interpretation placed by the Emperor on the policy and pretensions of the Pope....The London Post, in an article yesterday, urges severe measures against Ireland....Both boat crews now practicing for the University races are pronounced by experts "wretched in form."....Epsom Downs was covered on Saturday with four inches of snow, and the sportsmen are anxious in regard to the condition of the turf for the Spring races which begin today....Large numbers of icebergs are reported in the Atlantic by steamers arriving at Liverpool, and outgoing vessels have again been ordered to take a southerly course.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, a favorable report was received from committee in reference to building a new Court-house and Post-office at Albany. Various bills and resolutions of no general interest were introduced, and considerable debate took place upon an inquiry by Mr. DRAKE as to the cause of the delay in reporting the bill for the admission of Texas. Immediately after the expiration of the morning hour, the Senate went into Executive Session, and subsequently adjourned.

In the House both the morning and an evening session were mainly devoted to the debate on the tariff. A number of members expressed their views, among them Mr. COX, who made a long speech in defense of free trade. No progress was made with the bill. During the morning hour a bill was passed authorizing a supply of arms for instruction and practice in certain educational institutions. Among the bills introduced were the following: To pay pensions in gold; to reorganize the navy; to bridge the Mississippi River at St. Louis, and to prevent the collection of taxes levied on passengers by State authority. Of the resolutions offered was one that the Bible be used in the public schools, and another to tax the interest of Government bonds ten per cent, both of which went over under the rules. Resolutions were adopted calling on the President for information in regard to the San Domingo treaty, and making the discussion of the Cuban question a special order for April 6. Among the petitions presented were a large number from Ohio asking for the abolition of the national banks, and for an increase of the currency. Other business transacted was of minor importance.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

Both branches of the State Legislature held evening sessions last night. In the Senate several bills were ordered to a third reading. In the Assembly a petition of 3,000 residents of Brooklyn against the reduction of policemen's salaries proposed in the Brooklyn Bill, Mr. PRYER reported the first New-York charter introduced by him amended. An abstract of it is printed in another part of today's paper. It was made a special order for Wednesday. The Mid-land and Adirondack Railroad Bill also was made a special order for this evening.

GENERAL.

Brevet Col. BARRY has forwarded to Gen. SHERIDAN a report of the number and sex of the Indians killed at the Pigeon village, in which he says that 172 in all were killed, of whom 120 were able-bodied men and 52 women and children. He believes every effort was made to save the women and children, and that the women and children killed were killed accidentally. He characterizes the reports in Eastern papers as "wholly and maliciously false."

The municipal election in Memphis, Tenn., according to the latest returns, resulted in the choice of E. P. CURRY, Republican, for Sheriff, and several Republicans in other offices. CURRY was Colonel in the Union army, and his opponent, WASHBY, was a rebel Brigadier-General.

A statement recently sent to the Senate from the Navy Department shows that the number of monitors in the possession of the Department is See-going, 11; harbor and river, 9; of the class of the Passaic, 6; large-draft, 20; River iron-clad, (in the West,) 6; total, 51.

THOMAS L. WHITE, who shot and killed Mrs. HOUSE in Boston in August last, was yesterday sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment in the State Prison. He pleaded guilty of manslaughter. GEORGE COLLINS, for killing CATHERINE RILEY in Boston on last Christmas day was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment.

The Hampden Paper Company's mills at Holyoke, Mass., were burned on Sunday night; loss $200,000. By this disaster 150 persons are thrown out of employment.

A San Francisco dispatch says the compositors in the newspaper offices there have assented to a reduction of fifteen cents per thousand.

Gov. PALMER, of Illinois, has written a letter to CASSIUS M. CLAY declining to accept the position tendered him as Vice-President of the Cuban Aid Society of New-York.

Ten cars of a special tea train from San Francisco were thrown from the track of the Northwestern Railway near Cedar Rapids, on Sunday afternoon. The ground was fortunately soft, and no damage resulted to the cargo.

Two schooners are reported ashore in Indian River, Del., and are breaking up.

The bill to unite the cities of Boston and Cambridge passed to a third reading in the Massachusetts Senate yesterday by a vote of 17 to 9.

The Legislature of North Carolina adjourned sine die yesterday at Raleigh. The conservative members have published an address, in which they deny that Alleghanee County is in a state of insurrection, as proclaimed by Gov. HOLDEN.

Accounts have been received at Des Moines, Iowa, that twelve men were frozen to death in the north-western portion of the State during the severe snow-storm of the 15th inst. Six others are missing, and they are supposed to have also perished.

Mr. TILDEN, Chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, has called a meeting for Thursday, March 31, at the Delavan House in Albany.

The meeting of the Democratic General Committee which was to have taken place at Tammany Hall, last evening, did not come off for the reason that the Hall was closed by order of the Sachems. The majority of the Democratic General Committee assembled at Irving Hall and listened to speeches from the principal men of the "rising Democracy," after which the meeting quietly adjourned. Tammany was in possession of the Police during the entire evening. Immense crowds were in the streets in the vicinity, but behaved quietly.

The Knights of St. Crispin held a mass meeting at the Cooper Institute last evening, for the purpose of taking some action to oppose the present system of prison contracts. Resolutions were adopted in favor of the abrogation of convict labor, and addresses were made by M. W. YOUNG, M. C. MURPHY and others.

Two decrees of divorce were granted yesterday by Judge INGRAHAM, at the Chambers of the Supreme Court.

An emigrant agent, named PATRICK MCDONALD, notorious among the Police for his numerous and persistent successful attempts at swindling emigrants out of their money, was summarily sentenced to five years' imprisonment in State Prison by Judge BENEDICT, in the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, having been convicted of stealing several hundred dollars in gold from a French Canadian named JOSEPH BANTRICK.

The End of the First Act.

The wild storms which have lately been careering over earth and sea are a melancholy emblem of the tempest which rages among those self-denying patriots, the Democratic politicians, who are fighting for the control of this City. Every Democratic edifice has been rocked to its foundations. In the midst of the hurly-burly, it has been difficult to make out who has survived the general wreck. Last night the crisis was expected to be at its height. But in an unlucky moment for the rebellious Democracy, some of them threatened to use force if milder measures failed to secure the victory. It was represented to the authorities that there was imminent danger of a serious disturbance of the public peace. The leaders, indeed, indignantly disclaim all knowledge of any such project. But those who are responsible for the preservation of order in such a City as this cannot trust to chances. Had they neglected proper precautions, and had any mischief resulted, everybody would have said, "you were forewarned, and yet you deliberately allowed this disturbance to take place." The Mayor and the Sachems made representations which the Commissioners of Police would certainly not have been justified in passing by unheeded.

Most of us remember—and those who do not had better go and read Mr. BRYANT'S version of HOMER—that on a very memorable day the champion of the Trojans fell by the hands of Ajax. The Greeks were half crazy with joy, and poor Hector's friends were overwhelmed with despondency. What followed? Luckily, at that awkward moment Phœbus Apollo descended from above, and not only restored the expiring hero, but went before him to the battle. We should be sorry, for Hector's sake, to compare him with Mr. TWEED, but their cases were so far alike that nothing less than a deus ex machina seemed likely to save the hero of a hundred fights. As Olympus has suspended business for some time past, it is usual now to depend more exclusively upon material agencies. Consequently, the Police were summoned last night to fulfill a double function—they preserved the public peace, and they kept both the contending factions out of Tammany Hall. In vain the "Young Democracy" protested against this invasion of their rights. The officers in command of the force were exceedingly good-tempered, but they were also exceedingly obstinate. As fine a body of men as any lover of order could desire to see drawn up, stood before every entrance to Tammany Hall. They blocked up the steps, they lined the sidewalks, they stood at the corners of every street to keep the crowd in gentle motion. Some of the leaders of the "Young Democracy" made a feeble Hall and passed a series of resolutions. We do not think there was anything said or done which gave countenance to the apprehensions of the Grand Sachem, whatever may be thought of the political significance of the resolutions. Sheriff O'BRIEN and his supporters looked peaceable, but disgusted. They had certainly not anticipated this particular flank movement on the part of their antagonists. Mr. PULITZER's remarks were received with vociferous cheering, and the Young Democracy consoled themselves with the quiet determination to fight their battle, without arms, some other day.

Whatever may be said of their intentions yesterday, it is obvious that the struggle will not end here or now. Even celestial interposition did not always save Hector. The moment arrived when Jupiter himself was obliged to acknowledge that nothing more could be done. We are not predicting that the parallel will hold good in this case. But undoubtedly the time for trifling has passed. The citizens are tired of paying the piper for all this dancing. We, like the general public, only take an interest in this contest so far as it affects the welfare of the community. We want good government, and we care not from whence it comes. On the face of matters it certainly seems that Mr. TWEED and his friends have every motive to produce measures which would be satisfactory to the people. They are in a very critical position. They have not done much to win public sympathies in the past. But a shrewd politician will always see when the tide is turning. The public, we say again, are weary of this stale performance of jugglers tossing balls in the air, varied only by one juggler after another pulling a roll of "City charters" out of his mouth, instead of the traditional lump of tow or colored paper. The situation is a grave one, and everything will turn on the power of managing it which Mr. TWEED, Mr. SWEENY and their friends display.

Work Meet for Repentance.

Whatever else may be said of the morale of the recent imbroglio among the Democrats in this City, or of the animus which has prompted the factions, it begins to look as if the people at large were to be the ultimate gainers, and in a very unexpected way. The fierce demonstration of feeling which has been elicited by the recent collision in Albany, has, at least, set the old leaders to thinking that possibly they have gone too far, and that a politic regard for their future interests dictates a show of virtue regardless of inclination or conviction. Such is our interpretation of the motives which led to the preparation of the new charter which has just been devised by the legitimists of Tammany, and which will be found in another part of this paper.

It is not to be supposed that so great a measure of reform was the result of a voluntary impulse. Even average human nature is not so prone to concession as that document would imply, and especially when—as in the present instance—it involves a material sacrifice of pecuniary interest upon the part of the leading spirits engaged in it. The proposed new charter evidently received its inspiration from the urgent political necessities of the hour. We cannot even believe that it is the offspring of a sudden conviction of propriety based on apprehension. We should rather ascribe its production to the developed necessity for a new policy, and regard it as a shrewd device of one faction to secure an advantage over the other at a critical moment. We view it solely as a clever piece of strategy, by which Mr. TWEED has sought to intrench himself against the assaults of his enemies. The result shows that he has been successful, and in this case at least "success is the criterion of merit."

The following is a synopsis of the leading features of what may now properly be called "the new Tweed Charter": (1.) The municipal legislature shall consist of fifteen Aldermen and twenty-one Assistant Aldermen—one from each Assembly District—who shall be elected at the approaching judicial election. It shall have general control of the Government of the City, and have power to impeach the Mayor for cause. It shall only order regular expenditures on a three-fourth vote, extraordinary expenditures (for celebrations, &c.,) by a fourth-fifth vote, and those involving an increased claim by an unanimous vote. It can only increase officers or salaries on the request of the department to be affected. (2.) The Street and Croton Aqueduct Departments are to be abolished, and a Board of Public Works substituted, with a single Commissioner, and necessary bureaus of departments. All the present incumbents in the old Departments are to be removed. (3.) The head of each Department shall be held responsible for the acts of himself and subordinates; the Mayor to be the central authority with power to impeach before a tribunal for that purpose, and summarily to try and remove. (4.) The Police Department to be invested with similar powers to those now possessed, the Commissioners to hold at first for the unexpired terms of the present Commissioners, and afterward for five years—one of them to be a physician. (5.) The Health Department of the Board of Police shall possess the same powers as the present Board, and shall act conjointly with the Health Officer of the port, the Counsel to the Corporation, and three Health Commissioners, to be elected for five years. (6.) There shall be five Fire Commissioners, to be elected for five years, and invested with the same powers as the present Board. (7.) No change is proposed as to the election of the Counsel to the Corporation or Controller, or their powers. (8.) The Department of Charities and Correction is not materially interfered with. It shall consist of five Commissioners, to be elected for five years. Neither is any change to be made as to the Park Commission. (9.) A "Department of Docks" is created, to consist of five citizens, with powers conferred by the bill of the Citizens' Association. (10.) The Department of Public Buildings [illegible] Mr. Eyre, as our readers may remember, testified that he stopped a "good fifteen minutes," looking around; and the reflection occurs, accordingly, how many of that officer's recollections possess the same ratio of accuracy? What we know is that, instead of "looking around," he had no lookout set, while Mr. CAVANAGH and his friend saw "the flash of the fourth gun" from the Oneida, at Kanousaki, three miles distant.

Capt. EYRE is convicted not of deliberate malice, but of stolid recklessness as to what damage he had unintentionally done. He thought he was in the right as to the rule of the road, and seems to have considered that sufficient ground for going ahead. But the act of leaving his victim to her fate was one which should have been condemned and adequately punished. The world's sense of humanity and right is outraged by the judgment of a Court in which dry technicalities are evidently supreme.

The Battle of Tammany.

For several months it has been evident to the uninitiated public that the inner councils of Tammany were distracted by dissensions and jealousies, but precisely the nature of the trouble was for a long time a matter of mystery and speculation. The known scope of the organization, and the relations of the persons engaged in the contest were sufficient, however, to justify a very correct hypothesis, and it was generally understood to be a struggle for control, and the resulting personal and political power and patronage involved. For several years the control of that ancient and secret order had been in the hands of a few government politicians, who had made the greatest possible use of it, not only to enrich themselves at the expense of the people, but to entrench themselves in power by a judicious but selfish dispensation of patronage. Of course the natural result could be nothing else but to engender a spirit of assertion upon the one hand, and of opposition on the other. It soon became a struggle between the "cute" and the "ins":

"That they should take who have the power,
And they should keep who can."

The discontent of a section of the Democracy with the long-established ruling powers of Tammany having at length become sufficiently strong and organized to justify open opposition, war was formally declared [illegible] Mayor and Controller, shall be elected at the general election in May, and those two in November. We understand that the new charter will be presented to the Legislature at once, and its passage urged. If remains to be seen if it will stand the test of a close analysis and prove as desirable a reform as it is claimed to be.

Capt. Eyre and his Owner.

Clearly the Bombay Court at Yokohama is the "[illegible]" that ever found a sailor guilty of running away from a distressed ship. The chief censure of the Court seems to be exerted in declaring that the collision in the Bay of Yeddo was no fault of Capt. EYRE's; and when it comes to showing in what his fault did consist, the Court gently, tenderly, and almost deprecatingly, "regrets to have to record it as our opinion that he acted hastily and [illegible] in abandoning the Oneida to her fate. "We recognize the fact," the Court additionally explains, "that he was placed in a position of great difficulty and doubt"—though what difficulty there was for him it is hard to see, when the Court expressly finds that "in our opinion, no danger to the Bombay, or her passengers and cargo, was apprehended by Mr. EYRE," while not much doubt could exist "as to the effect of an iron ship striking a wooden one precisely as she would do in case the two had been enemies, and she had sought to sink her victim.

Six months' suspension of Mr. EYRE's certificate is the merciful penalty this good-natured Court imposes on the crime which left a crushed ship and six-score gallant men to sink helplessly. No wonder that a local paper remarks that "under the circumstances Capt. EYRE could hardly have hoped to get off as easily as he has." But at least it is a consolation to have the damning evidence on which the Court came to its conclusion spread in full before the world, where the sentence may be itself revised at the bar of public opinion.

The Court finds unanimously that the injury received by the Bombay was "comparatively slight," while, on the other hand, Capt. EYRE "evidently thought the Oneida might possibly have sustained serious injury." Nevertheless, he only "waited at the most five minutes to see if signals of distress were made from the Oneida," and when he proceeded again, he "gave no orders that a lookout should be kept in the direction of the Oneida," while "with a proper lookout the flash of the Oneida's guns must have been seen." Now all this, be it remembered, is based on the Bombay's own testimony, and we repeat that it fixes on Capt. EYRE a degree of guilt to which the actual reprimand and penalty are totally inadequate.

When we come to review the evidence itself we find it still more damaging to Capt. EYRE. The second officer of the Bombay tells us that when the ships separated, a voice cried from the Oneida, "Steamer ahoy!" and that the fourth officer reported this to Capt. EYRE. Mr. YATES, of the Oneida, swears that this voice was that of Lieutenant-Commander STEWART, that he "sung out in a loud tone," and that precisely what he said was "Steamer ahoy! you have cut us down! remain by us!" But the Bombay went on "out of sight." Again, as to the great hole made by the collision, two officers of Her Majesty's ship Ocean testify that somebody on board the Bombay told them, on her arrival, that they could "see right into the Oneida's saloon;" and the Bombay's carpenter said the same thing in a public hotel at Yokohama the same night. It further appears that the time during which the Bombay slackened speed was, as the indicator showed, about four minutes. Now Capt. EYRE

EUROPE.

Prince Bonaparte Sentenced to a Heavy Fine—The New Senatus Consultum—Important Obituary—Cardinal Antonelli on Napoleon.

PARIS, March 28.—The High Court of Tours has condemned Prince PIERRE BONAPARTE to pay 25,000 francs to the family of VICTOR NOIR, and also to pay the expenses of the civil suit.....In the Senate today, M. ROUHER presiding, Minister OLLIVIER read the project of a Senatus Consultum. Grows up in accordance with the recent letter of the Emperor. It makes important changes in the prerogatives of the Senate. Hereafter the legislative power is to be divided between the Emperor, the Senate and the Corps Legislatif; the number of Senators must be one-third less than that of the Deputies. Former articles giving the constituent power to the Senate are abrogated, and the Constitution henceforth may only be changed by the voice of the people on the proposal of the Emperor.....Cardinal ANTONELLI's reply to M. DARU's dispatch has been made public. It substantially denies the interpretation the Emperor places on the policy and pretensions of the Pope.

The Bonaparte Assault in England—Severity Urged for Ireland—The Epsom Grand Stakes—Sport on the Epsom Race Course—Icebergs in the Atlantic.

LONDON, March 28.—The acquittal of Prince BONAPARTE is much commented on here. The Times, in reviewing the proceedings of the High Court of Tours, pronounces Prince PIERRE BONAPARTE a creature not to be trusted with a deadly weapon, but to be kept, like a madman, under constant watch.....The Post urges a policy of extreme rigor toward Ireland.....The practice of the University boat crews for their annual race is carefully watched and reported. The papers concur in pronouncing both crews wretched in form.....There were four inches of snow on Epsom Downs last Saturday, and sportsmen are seriously perplexed about the condition of the turf, as the Epsom Spring races commence to-morrow.

LIVERPOOL, March 28.—Outgoing trans-Atlantic steamers have been ordered to take the southerly course to avoid icebergs, unusual numbers of which are reported by arrivals here.

Later from Paraguay—Lopez Again Being Pursued.

LISBON, March 28.—The South American mail steamer has arrived, bearing dates of the 7th inst. from Rio Janeiro.

At last accounts from Paraguay the Brazilian troops were rapidly moving in pursuit of LOPEZ.

Serious Illness of Gen. Thomas—Progress of the Sutro Tunnel—A Move to Purchase the State of Maine—Miscellaneous.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Major-Gen. THOMAS, commanding the Department of the Pacific, was today attacked with an epileptic fit. He is reported to be in a critical condition.....The Sutro Tunnel has been excavated 974 feet. A bed of rock has been struck which requires blasting. There has been no increase of water in the tunnel.....In the Legislature of British Columbia a motion was carried that Canada purchase Alaska and the State of Maine.....The iron-clad Zealous arrived at this port today.....The Central Pacific Railroad Company has completed a temporary bridge over the American River.

THE INDIANS.

The Piegan Massacre—Col. Baker's Report—Fifty-three Women and Children Killed—The Big Horn Expedition.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The following was received today at army headquarters:

FORT ELLIS, MON., March 23.

Gen. P. H. Sheridan, Commanding Military Division, Chicago:

In answer to your telegram received on the 23d inst., I report that after having made every effort to get the Indians out of the vicinity of the command, I was satisfied that the following number approximates nearly to the exact truth as possible. The number killed at the Piegan village was 173, of whom 120 were able-bodied men and fifty-three women and children; 140 women and children were afterwards captured and released. I believe that every effort was made by the officers and men to save the non-combatants, and that such women and children that were killed were accidentally killed. The report published in the Eastern papers is wholly and maliciously false. It seems incredible that the false assertions of two persons, neither of whom has made any efforts to inform himself in the matter, should outweigh the report of those engaged in the fight, and who feel that they have nothing to palliate or conceal. I do not believe that the officers demand of the authorities is a full and complete investigation of the campaign and less than this cannot be conceded them.

(Signed,) E. M. BAKER,
Brevet Colonel U. S. Army, Major Second Cavalry.

CHICAGO, March 28.—Private advices from Cheyenne are to the effect that GOV. CAMPBELL disapproves the starting of any expeditions to explore the lands reserved by the Government for the use of the Indians, as opposed to the Indian policy of the Administration and a violation of our obligations. It is now stated that the Big Horn expedition does not design to encroach on the Indian lands. This subject is exciting much interest in the West, but it is thought that the influence of GOV. CAMPBELL and Gen. AUGUR will be sufficient to keep the leaders of the expedition within proper bounds.

The total insurance is $197,000.

BOSTON, March 28. The building Nos. 202 and 204 Washington-street, was badly damaged by fire this morning. It was occupied by WILLIAM BOYLE, dealer in harness and perfumery, and A. F. COPELAND, confectioner. The loss is estimated at $13,000; mostly insured.

NEW-ORLEANS, March 26.—The steamboat Jefferson, from Red River, with 834 bales of cotton, was burned yesterday at the mouth of the Black River. The boat and cargo are a total loss. No lives were lost.

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—A fire this evening damaged the cheese ware-house of KOONS & BROTHER, No. 118 South Wharves, to the extent of $20,000.

Wreck of a Schooner—Scene of the Effects of the Storm.

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—The schooner C. F. Young, from Cienfuegos March 20, reports that in latitude 39° 25', longitude 72° 07', she fell in with the schooner Isaac Baker, of Boston, from Matanzas for Philadelphia, dismasted and in a sinking condition. The Captain and crew, eight in number, were rescued and brought to this port.

LEWES, Del., March 28.—Two schooners are ashore at Indian River, fourteen miles below here. Their names are unknown. One has a West India cargo, consisting of cocoa nuts and tobacco. Both schooners are breaking up.

PORTLAND, Me., March 28.—The storm was very severe here, and continued until this afternoon. It began with sleet last night, and changed to rain.

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—The steamer Tonawanda, hence for Savannah on Saturday last, has returned; she was disabled during the heavy gale off Hatteras. Her boiler broke loose, and her steam-pipes broke, filling the vessel with steam and scalding some of the engineers and firemen. The [illegible] fire, but by the strenuous efforts of the crew and passengers, the fire was subdued. The vessel was towed to Delaware Bay under sail, and was brought here by a tug.

ALBANY.

The Legislature Adjourned Last Evening—A Notable Character Memorialized—The Character—Peter B. Sweeny Sent for.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, March 28.—Both Houses were in session to-night. The city members of the New-York delegation present were Senator BRADLEY and Assemblymen FERRAR, BURNS, MACHERSON and OWEN MURPHY. FERRAR occupied the Speaker's chair in the Assembly, and reported the new charter as an amendment to Charter No. 1, which has been in the hands of the Committee on Cities, of which FERRAR is Chairman since its introduction. Five members of the Committee are here, and concurred in a favorable report. The new charter was made the special order for Wednesday morning, immediately after the reading of the journal. Messrs. LITTLEJOHN, ALVORD, SEKERNO and other Republicans express themselves satisfied in the main with its provisions, and if the O'Brien Democracy don't like it, it can probably be passed without their aid. They had better settle their quarrels in New-York, and hurry up, or it will get through before they arrive here. PETER B. SWEENY came up on the evening train, as it is said, at the special request of Senator HARDENBURG, who thinks his counsel is needed to harmonize the party and get the Democratic engine once more on the track. The Young Democracy have demoralized things to such an extent that the most skillful physicians are needed to set matters right. Whether PETER B. will be equal to the task remains to be seen.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.....ALBANY, Monday, March 28.

Mr. SANFORD introduced a bill relative to appeals from decisions of Canal Appraisers.

The following bills were ordered to a third reading:

Authorizing the Flushing and Northside Railroad Company to construct a drawbridge over Flushing Creek; Amending the act providing for the publication of Sessions laws.

Adjourned.

ASSEMBLY.

Mr. O'KEEFE presented a petition of 2,000 citizens of Brooklyn, against a reduction of the salaries of Policemen, as provided in the Brooklyn Police bill; Mr. SEYMOUR reported the bill aiding the Carthage, Sackett's Harbor and Watertown Railroad; also, the Canoeteda and Carenovia Railroad.

ANOTHER CHARTER.

Mr. FERAR reported the first New-York Charter Bill, introduced by himself, amended by striking out the provisions relative to excise and incorporating them in a separate bill. On motion of Mr. BURNS the bill was made the special order for Wednesday.

CANAL TOWING.

Mr. ALLABEN called up the resolution offering a bounty for an invention for towing on the canals, and moved an amendment directing the State Engineer to offer a bounty of $100,000 for such invention, to be produced by the 1st of July, 1871.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN called attention to the fact that the Constitution requires that all appropriations shall be by bill and not by resolution. Besides, in this country our inventors produce their inventions without asking bounties. The man who could produce such an invention would have a sure fortune.

The resolution was referred to the Canal Committee.

RAILROAD BILLS.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN asked consent to have the Midland Railroad Aid bill made the special order for to-morrow evening.

Mr. GLEASON asked that the Adirondack Railroad bill be included.

Mr. ALVORD objected, and the question being put to the House, was carried.

The Buffalo and Washington Railroad Aid bill was also sent to the same Committee of the Whole. Adjourned.

THE LAST CHARTER.

Tweedy's Amendment to Charter No. 1—An Improvement on the First Efforts.

The latest Charter, which was reported yesterday in the Assembly as an amendment to the first Charter, introduced some weeks ago, is given almost entire below.

The first article relating to the corporate powers provides that the Corporation now existing and known by the name of "The Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City of New-York," shall continue to be a body politic and corporate, in fact and in name, by the same name, and shall have perpetual succession with all the grants, powers and privileges heretofore held by the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York, and not modified or repealed by the provisions hereinafter made by this act.

ARTICLE SECOND OF LEGISLATIVE POWER.

Article second of legislative power provides that the legislative power of the said Corporation shall continue to be vested in the Board of Aldermen and a Board of Assistant Aldermen, who together shall form the Common Council of the City of New-York. The Board of Aldermen shall consist of fifteen members, to be elected upon a separate ticket from the City at large and the Assistant Aldermen shall consist of twenty-five, to be elected in each Assembly District. The first election for Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen shall take place at the judicial election, to be held in the City and County of New-York on the third Tuesday in May, 1870, and the Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen thus elected shall take office on the first Monday in June following, at noon, and then supersede the Common Council now in office, whose terms of office shall then cease and determine. Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen elected shall hold office until the first Monday in January, 1872. There shall be Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen elected at the general election in November, 1871, and annually thereafter at every succeeding general election, who shall take office at noon on the first Monday of January in each and every year following their election.

DUTIES OF THE BOARDS.

Each Board shall, 1. Choose a President from its own members; 2. Appoint a Clerk and other officers; 3. Determine the rules of its own proceedings; 4. Be the judge of the returns of election, and the right of election and qualifications of its own members; 5. Keep a record of its proceedings; 6. Sit with open doors, except when the public welfare shall require secrecy; and 7. Shall have authority to compel the attendance of absent members, and to punish its members for disorderly behavior; and to expel a member with a concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected to the Board. Every legislative act of the Common Council shall be by resolution or ordinance, and every ordinance or joint resolution shall, before it shall take effect, be presented, duly certified to the Mayor for his approval. If he approves it, he shall sign it. If he disapproves, he shall return it with his objections, in writing, to the Board to which such disapproval within the time above specified, it shall take effect as if he had approved it. The Board to which such ordinance or resolution shall be so returned may proceed to reconsider it, after the expiration of not less than ten days thereafter, proceed to reconsider the same, and if, on reconsideration, it shall pass both Boards by a vote of at least three-fourths of all the members elected to each Board, it shall take effect. No ordinance or resolution shall be valid unless it shall receive the assent of both Boards within the term fixed by law to such Boards. In case any ordinance or resolution involves the expenditure of money, the votes of three-fourths of all the members elected to each Board shall become necessary to its passage. No money shall be expended for any celebration, banquet, or entertainment of any kind, on any occasion, unless by the votes of four-fifths of all the members elected to each Board. No additional allowance beyond the legal claim which exists under any contract with the corporation, or for any services on its account, or in its employment, shall ever be passed by the Common Council except by the unanimous vote thereof.

POWERS OF THE COUNCIL.

The Common Council shall have power to make, continue, modify and repeal such ordinances, regulations and resolutions as may be necessary to carry into effect any and all of the powers now vested in, or by this act conferred upon the Corporation, and shall have power to enforce obedience thereto and observance thereof, by ordaining penalties for each and every violation thereof, in such sums as it may deem expedient, not exceeding one hundred dollars, and to provide for the right to make such ordinances and with such penalties in the manners and for the purposes following; in addition to such powers elsewhere specially granted, viz.: 1. To regulate the use of the streets, highways, roads and public places; 2. To regulate the use of the streets, highways, roads and public places by foot passengers, vehicles, railways and locomotives; 3. To regulate the construction of sidewalks, building-fronts and house-fronts within the said City; 4. To prevent and remove encroachments upon and obstructions in the streets, highways, roads and public places; 5. To regulate the opening of gas or water mains, the building and repairing of sewers, and erecting gaslights; 6. To provide for and regulate the opening, widening and extending of streets below Fourteenth-street; 7. To regulate the numbering of the houses and lots in the streets and avenues, and naming the streets, avenues and public places; 8. To regulate and prevent the throwing or depositing of ashes, refuse, dirt or garbage in the streets; 9. To regulate the cleaning of the streets, sidewalks and gutters, and removing ice, hail and snow from them; 10. To regulate the use of the streets and sidewalks for signs, lamp-posts, awning-posts and horse-troughs; 11. To provide for and regulate street pavements, crosswalks, curb-stones, gutter-stones and sidewalks; 12. To regulate public sales, advertising, notices and ringing bells in the streets; 13. In regard to the relation between all the officers and employes of the Corporation in respect to each other, the Corporation and the people; 14. In relation to street beggars, vagrants and mendicants; 15. In relation to the use of guns, pistols, firearms, fire-crackers, fireworks and detonating works of all descriptions within the City; 16. In relation to intoxication, fighting and quarreling in the streets; 17. In relation to places of public amusement; 18. In relation to exhibiting or carrying banners, placards or flags in or across the streets or public places; 19. In relation to the exhibition of advertisements or handbills along the streets; 20. In relation to the construction, repairs and use of vaults, areas, areas, areas, hydrants, pumps and [illegible]; 21. In relation to [illegible] and [illegible]; 22. In relation to the construction, repair and use of markets, docks, wharves, piers, slips and [illegible]; 23. In relation to [illegible]; 24. In relation to the [illegible] of the City; 25. FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE—WASHINGTON, Monday, March 28.

Mr. HOWARD presented the joint resolutions of the Iowa Legislature relating to the civil contest in the Island of Cuba, claiming the right and duty of the Government to recognize the belligerency of the Cubans. Read and ordered to be printed and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were presented as follows:

By Mesrs. SUMNER and SHERMAN for an appropriation to the Wilberforce University, in Ohio, for the education of colored youth from the South.

By Mr. SUMNER, from citizens of Pennsylvania, for a revision of the existence of the Alleghany Coal in Congressional Commission.

By Mr. SAYPER, from SARAH WILSON, of Vicksburg, Miss., for a pension for the use of her property by the United States Government during the late war.

By Mr. DRAKE, a memorial of 120 members of the St. Louis Bar, in favor of the bill increasing the salaries of the Judges of the United States Courts. Laid on the table.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, from the Committee on Public Buildings, reported with an amendment in the nature of a substitute, the bill for the building of a post-office, &c., at Little Rock, Ark.; also, favorably on the bill to provide a building for the use of the Custom-house, United States Courts and District Courts, at Albany, N. Y.

Mr. WILSON, from the Military Committee, to whom petitions on the subject were referred, reported a joint resolution relative to the officers of the Soldiers' Home; also, a joint resolution directing the Secretary of War to sell the Bergen Heights Arsenal.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions were also offered:

By Mr. NORTON, of Minnesota, calling upon the Secretary of the Interior for copies of all the reports from the Pacific Railroad Company on file in the Department of the Interior. Adopted.

By Mr. CHESNAUT, requesting the Secretary of State to furnish copies of all papers addressed to his State Department by Mr. HAMILTON C. JAY, while United States Minister to Peru, relating to the opening of the River Amazon to the commerce of all nations. Adopted.

By Mr. FESSENDEN, directing an inquiry by the Committee on Pensions as to additional legislation exempting persons pensioned by special acts from the operation of the act of July 2, 1864. Adopted.

By Mr. SHERMAN, discharging the Military Committee from further consideration of the Texas bill. Objected to and laid over.

TEXAS.

Mr. DRAKE rose to make an inquiry of the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee (Mr. TRUMBULL) as to the cause of the delay in reporting the bill for the admission of Texas. He understood the bill for the readmission of Georgia was reported the day after its reference to the Committee, yet the Texas bill had now been fourteen days in the hands of the Committee.

Mr. TRUMBULL remarked that no motion had been made, and he would like to know what question was before the Senate.

Mr. DRAKE replied that if not in order in making the inquiry he would take his seat, but, if in order, he hoped the Chairman of the Committee would consider that the inquiry was made in good faith, and that no indignity to himself or the Committee was intended.

Mr. TRUMBULL expressed his willingness to reply to the question so far as he was able. The Senate was aware that since the introduction of the Texas bill, and the admission of Gen. AMES, questions of the highest privilege were still undisposed of. He could not understand the undue haste in regard to Texas. Was the bill first came from the House an effort had been made by the Senator from Massachusetts (SUMNER) to consider it without its reference by the Committee at all. The bill itself contained a clause that it should not affect any of the conditions or guarantees upon which Texas was originally admitted or readmitted as a State. One of these original conditions provided that States that might thereafter be carved out of the Territory of Texas should be admitted into the Union with or without slavery, as the people of each State might at the time of their admission desire. This admission of small slave States in Texas, if the people there so desired, was contrary to the Constitution of the United States. The Committee therefore desired to amend the bill so as to report it in proper shape.

Mr. DRAKE suggested that the very fact of a difficulty should lead to an early report in order that Texas might speedily be admitted.

To close the debate, Mr. SHERMAN called for the regular order, which was proceeded with.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA SAVINGS BANK.

Mr. HAMLIN called up the bill to incorporate the National Union Savings Bank of the District of Columbia, which was passed.

The morning hour expiring, the Senate, at 1 o'clock went into Executive Session, and at 4½ P. M. adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. SCHENCK, of Ohio, introduced a joint resolution authorizing the supply of arms for instruction and practice to certain colleges and universities. Passed.

BUSINESS FROM STATE LEGISLATURES.

The following resolutions were presented from various State Legislatures:

By Mr. HALE—A resolution of the Maine Legislature for the preservation of harbors in that State.

By Mr. PAINE—Resolutions of the Wisconsin Legislature asking further appropriations for harbors in Lake Superior, &c.

By Mr. ASHELL—Resolutions of the California Legislature relating to the breakwater at Wilmington Harbor on the coast of California; also, to relinquish the interest of the United States to certain lands in San Francisco.

By Mr. GRIMES, of Iowa—Resolutions of the Iowa Legislature relative to the Cuban conflict.

By Mr. WILKINSON—Memorial of the Minnesota Legislature for the removal of certain Indians from the frontier of that State.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were presented as follows:

By Mr. MORGAN—Eighteen petitions of citizens of Ohio, asking Congress to abolish National banks, to issue $500,000,000 in greenbacks, to make them receivable and payable on all dues, imports and taxes, and to pay of $300,000,000 of five-twenty bonds.

By Mr. GARFIELD—Of citizens of Newton Falls, Ohio, against any change in the Tariff laws, as suggested by the Free Trade League; for a reduction of the duty on tea, coffee, &c., and for a readjustment of the duty on manufactures.

By Mr. SCHUMAKER—Of residents of New-York and Brooklyn for the removal of all duties on pig lead.

By Mr. MERCHANT—Of residents of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to the same effect.

Bills were introduced and referred as follows:

By Mr. HALE—To prevent the collection of illegal taxes on passengers levied by State authority.

By Mr. POTTER—To regulate the change of names of vessels. Incorporating the Southern Transcontinental Railroad Company and granting lands and right of way therefor.

By Mr. HAYS—Granting lands to the Selma and Gulf Railroad.

By Mr. CONNER—Authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at St. Louis.

By Mr. CULLOM—Relating to the government of the Territory of Montana.

By Mr. FORD—For the reorganization of the navy.

By Mr. JOHNSON—Turnstiles Bolinas, Cal., as a port of entry.

By Mr. LOCKWOOD—To provide for the payment of pensions in gold.

By Mr. PRICE—Granting lands, &c., for a railroad from the California and Oregon Railroad to the Central Pacific Railroad; also, for a railroad from the Central Pacific Railroad, in Nevada, to the Colorado River; also, to terminate Indian reservations.

By Mr. CRAVENS, of New-Mexico—To authorize the raising of two regiments of volunteers for protection against the wild Indians; also, in relation to the Pueblo Tribe of Indians.

By Mr. GARFIELD, of Washington Territory—Relative to coal lands.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions were offered as follows:

By Mr. FROSSER—Calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for information as to the payment by the Pacific Railroad Companies for the interest on the bonds issued to them by the Government. Adopted.

By Mr. ASHELL—Declaring that the Christian religion is a part of the common law of the land, and that, therefore, the use of the Bible in the public schools in the country is eminently wise and proper as tending to encourage and foster virtue and morality. The previous question was not seconded, and the resolution was rejected under the rules.

By Mr. BECK—Instructing the Committee of Ways and Means to report forthwith a bill levying a tax of at least ten per cent. on the interest of United States bonds, to be deducted by the disbursing officers. The previous question, on the resolution was not seconded by a vote of 45 to 42.

By Mr. VAN TRUMP—Rescinding that a resolution adopted in the House on Jan. 26, 1870, calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for information as to the interest paid to the Government on the bonds issued to the Union and Central Pacific Railroads and branches, the amount repaid by the Companies, &c., has not yet been replied to, and directing a copy of the same to be presented to the Secretary, with a suggestion that it remain unanswered. Over under the rules.

THE SAN DOMINGO TREATY.

Mr. MUNGEN offered a resolution calling on the President for information relating to the San Domingo treaty, giving the names of persons and companies to whom lands, mines, franchises and privileges of all kinds have been given by the Dominican Government, with the amount paid by the United States Government preliminary to and concerning the negotiations of such treaty. Adopted.

THE CUBAN QUESTION.

Mr. BANKS, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, offered a resolution granting leave to the Committee to present in print, for the consideration of the House, the majority and minority reports on the several resolutions, petitions, &c., referred to it relative to the Cuban question, on Wednesday, April 6, next, and the report made the special order for that day, and for every succeeding day until disposed of. The resolution was adopted, the Speaker stating that it would not interfere with the Tariff bill or any other matters having precedence over it.

THE AIR-LINE RAILWAY.

A PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Mr. STORES, rising to a personal explanation, corrected the testimony he had given before the Committee on Military Affairs on the matter of Mr. BUTLER, of Tennessee. He had found, in looking over his papers, that the sum paid by Mr. BUTLER to the Chairman of the State Central Committee for the Stock Impending was not one, as he had testified, but 200; and the other 200 had been paid to Mr. GREELEY, the editor of that paper.

THE TARIFF DEBATE.

The House then, at 1½ o'clock, went into Committee of the Whole (Mr. WHITE in the chair) on the Tariff bill, and was addressed by Mr. AIGEN against high protective duties.

Mr. COX next addressed the Committee on the same side of the question. He characterized the bill as the climax of rapacity and audacity. His speech was full of good points and contained a formidable array of facts.

Mr. GILFILLAN followed as the advocate of the interests of Pennsylvania as affected by a protective tariff.

Mr. SHANNON signed in favor of admitting coal free of duty.

Mr. DUCKEY inquired of Mr. SHANNON whether he thought that the admission of Nova Scotia coal free of duty would lessen the price of coal in Cincinnati? Mr. STEVENSON thought it would, as it would tend to break down the present coal monopoly. He also argued against the high tariff duty on iron. He pleaded for an unrestricted free list, and for cheaper raw material. He rebuked Pennsylvania with that spirit of monopoly which organizes strikes among miners to make coal dearer; which groans into the earth until the villages tumble; which allows the miners to be burned or suffocated in the mines rather than open additional shafts; which advises the oil producers to burn the fuse in order to raise the price and which sells a cup of cold water at Gettysburg. He warned Pennsylvania to beware; the people would level monopoly and crush her hydra head.

The House at 4½ took a recess until 7 P. M. the evening session to be for general debate on the Tariff bill.

EVENING SESSION.

The House met at 7½ in Committee of the Whole, for debate on the Tariff bill.

Mr. WOODWARD addressed the Committee in favor of protection on coal and iron, contending that the duties proposed in the bill on those articles was not too high.

Mr. BUCKNEY spoke in favor of admitting, free of duty, machinery for spinning yarn, urging its importance on the prosperity of the South.

Mr. WELKER addressed the Committee in defense of the present Administration, its financial policy and its economy in carrying on the Government.

Mr. McKENZIE declared himself in favor of protecting American industry, but still adverse to a high tariff. He particularly objected to the duty on salt, sugar, coffee, and tea.

Mr. MOORE, of Illinois, claimed that the legislation of Congress ought not to be for the purpose of building up such monopolies at the expense of other industries.

The House at 10 o'clock adjourned.

THE FALLEN HOUSE.

Appearance of the Scene of the Forty-sixth-Street Disaster Yesterday—Action of Coroner Keenan—A Rigid Inquiry to be Made.

The scene of desolation and horror in West Forth-sixth-street, near the North River, where the large unfinished five-story brick tenement fell and caused the deaths of BENJAMIN DONNELLY, his wife Rose, and three of their children, was yesterday visited by large crowds of people.

The appearance of the ruins yesterday fully confirmed the impression already published, that the fallen building had been erected in unseemly haste, and with a total disregard of the consequences that might have ensued from any carelessness or neglect in the manner of placing the materials in position as the building progressed. As the writer stood perched up on an elevated beam, rising as it did from amid the extraordinary confusion of beams, bricks, lintels, door-frames, laths, plaster and pillars, it was easy to perceive that the four walls of the building had in reality fallen outward, as the indications of such a direction were distinctly visible. The front or binding wall had been buried by the pressure of the interior beams into the street, and it was a singular fact that the corner iron pillars that had supported the girders used to uphold the wall with a view of making the first floor into one room, had fallen on the side-walk exactly in a line with the position they had occupied while erect. There having been only about eight feet of brick work in the front wall over the girder, the debris in the street was not so extensive as in other parts of the ruin. The confused mass of material in the street consisted mainly of broken scaffolding and a heap of unused sand and mortar. The east wall, although the first to sustain the shock of the storm of wind and rain that had caused the demolition of the building, had not wholly fallen toward the west, as one would imagine. Fully half of the material that had composed that wall was lying in a confused and huddled mass upon a large mass of sand that had originally been throwa up in excavating the cellar of the building, and which lay on the adjoining and unoccupied lot. The rear wall had almost bodily fallen into the rear yard. The west wall, following the course of the others, and the tremendous impetus it had received from the wind and the great weight of material behind, had been thrown entirely over into the lot on which had stood the modest little cottage, owned and occupied by the ill-fated DONNELLY family. The scene was truly terrible. The crushed homestead was only marked by a low remnant of wall and the unshattered street door. The frame-work of the latter still bore the number of the house, 625, and the little wooden railing on either side had been scarcely touched by the press of bricks that had fallen. The little corner where the sole survivor of the DONNELLY family had been found after the disaster, was still remaining in the condition it appeared in on Sunday, and the little hobby-horse stood there half hidden by the loose bricks, that had been thrown aside by those engaged in searching for the bodies of the dead. The entire scene was indeed a desolate one, though it lacked the presence of the fierce and howling storm that made the ruin so terrible when visited on the Sabbath.

All day long the neighborhood was thronged by those who were curious to see the ruin, and on every face could be discerned a feeling of horror at the terrible result of the disaster. Many loud expressions of indignation were made by citizens, and the drift of evidence to be obtained on the ground here heavily against the owner and contractor of the demolished edifice. Some there were who attempted to explain that the tenement-house would not have fallen before the fury of the gale, had the roof been on, but this did not seemingly allay the sentiments of the majority of those present. Much deep regret can be found who will pronounce the building to have been properly erected, the owners and contractors for the work have incurred a terrible responsibility, for which they will no doubt be held to strict account.

Coroner KEENAN visited the residence of Mr. CARSON MILLER, of No. 604 West Forty-third-street, where he found the bodies of those who were killed. Owing to the prevailing excitement, and the apparent necessity for a strict investigation into the charges made against the builders, the Coroner decided to postpone his investigation until Saturday next, when Mr. McGREGOR, inspector of Buildings, will be present, and ready, as well as several professional builders, who have been requested to make a critical examination of the ruins. In order that the remains of the victims may receive proper burial, Coroner KEENAN and his deputy, Dr. WOODTEN BEACH, granted the necessary certificates, and yesterday removed the bodies to the grief-stricken relatives. The preparations for the funeral are not yet decided upon, but it is understood that arrangements will be perfected today, and the funeral will take place to-morrow. Mr. MILLER is a brother-in-law of Mrs. DONNELLY, and his wife being sisters, and it was in his house that BENJAMIN DONNELLY married Rose, his wife, who now lies cold and disfigured by his side. There is also another sister of the deceased woman in this country, a Mrs. KELLY, who resides with her husband in Holmesburg, Penn., and the attention of the Philadelphia papers is called to this fact, as the MILLER family are unable to reach them as quickly as is desired. The remains of the five victims were yesterday visited by the residents of the neighborhood, and the sight of the corpses as they lay in a ghastly row upon the floor of the front room invariably created a deep impression upon the minds of those pastering the room.

The condition of little CHARLEY, the boy who was so strangely saved from sharing the sudden death of his relatives, was reported yesterday as an improving one. The physicians in attendance were agreeably surprised to find the boy much stronger under his manifold and severe injuries than was anticipated by them. With proper care, of which he is already abundantly assured, and the absence of any undue excitement in the vicinity of his room, there is now a fair prospect of his ultimate recovery, though as yet his young life hangs in a frail and trembling balance.

Coroner KEENAN yesterday afternoon impaneled a jury, who having viewed the bodies of the deceased, were dismissed until Saturday morning, when the inquest will be commenced.

Collector Bailey Heard From—Receipt of a Letter from Him by Collector Pleasanton—He is Seen in Albany.

Gen. PLEASONTON has received a letter from Ex-Collector BAILEY, without date, but bearing the City post-mark, in which the writer says he is where he reads the newspapers and is glad to see that Gen. PLEASONTON has been selected as his successor, believing that he will make a capable and vigilant officer. He says his determination to leave New-York was made but half an hour before he started, and that he had no things to put to order. He confirms the results of the investigation, so far as they have gone; says none of his subordinates but Deputy Collector CHILDS knew anything of the matter, and that he got no personal benefit from using the money, asserting that it was used to ferret out fraud. He does not put this forward, he adds, as an apology, but as a simple statement of the fact.

Mr. DUCHAME, Supervisor of Internal Revenue, received a letter from Albany, yesterday, announcing that BAILEY was seen there on Thursday last by a person who is acquainted with him. It was also reported that the missing Collector took dinner with a prominent journalist on Sunday morning at his residence in the City.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

FRIDAY, MARCH 29.

JAMES QUIGLEY, JOHN BURNEY, and [illegible] McBARRON, all boys of tender age, [illegible] Friday last detected in the act of breaking [illegible] the store window of HANNAH SAUNDERS, at No. [illegible] Hudson-street, when they stolen and [illegible] five watch chains and two sixpenny [illegible] valued at $[illegible]. All three were subsequently arrested and found in possession of the [illegible] proceeds. Were arraigned before Justice [illegible] last at the Tombs, yesterday, the Hudson [illegible] burglars were fully committed for trial.

On Saturday last a car-load of salmon, weighing over [illegible] pounds, reached this City from Sacramento, consigned to Moses, H. O. Rogers & Co. The fish occupied in their transit was about thirteen days, considerable delay occurring at various points on the route. Being packed in ice, the fish were nicely preserved, and when taken from the car they bore the appearance of having just been seized from the water. This is the second cargo of salmon that has reached New-York from the Pacific coast, the first one—4,000 pounds—having come on the 1st inst. For these shipments the Metropolis is indebted to the enterprise of Mr. ALFRED BOONE, a well-known oyster dealer of Chicago. The fish cost on the Sacramento River from five to eleven cents per pound, and from ocean to ocean the freight costs 20 cents per pound. Here they are easily disposed of at about fifty cents per pound, retail. The consignor's profit on the first car-load was about $1,000, and on the second about twice that amount.

A lecture will be delivered by Miss ANNA WEAVER, this evening, at the A. M. E. Bethel Church, Sullivan-street, between Bleecker and Amity streets. Subject: "Are We United?"

Dr. DAVID P. HOLTON discussed the question of "Free Baths" at No. 240 West Fifteenth-street, last evening. The audience in attendance was not large, consisting of some half a dozen boys, two or three gentlemen and the Doorkeeper of the Hall. The speaker claimed to benefit both the rich and the poor, as to take entire blocks in different parts of the City and erect thereon four-story buildings with huge tanks, dressing rooms, warm baths, &c. The cost, he thought, would be a mere pittance, possibly a few millions. Some time ago, which he had been informed, a Turkish swimming bath, the doctor said, was in safe keeping, the interest being applied toward reducing the City debt. The idea of free baths is good; the scheme proposed, Utopian.

At a meeting of the Faculty of the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church, held on the 24th inst., resolutions of respect for the character and memory of the late WILLIAM C. WERPLEACK were entered on the minutes.

The Senate Committee on Municipal Affairs will hear parties in reference to the extension of Madison-avenue, on Wednesday, the 30th inst., at 4 o'clock P. M., at Albany.

JOHN S. MULLIN, of No. 27 First-street, Jersey City, met JAMES COLLINS on Sunday night near the ferry and asked to be shown a lodging-house. COLLINS escorted him to two places unsuccessfully, and then suddenly disappeared. MULLIN at the same time missed his silver watch, valued at $60, from his pantaloons pocket, and notified an officer, who succeeded in arresting COLLINS, finding him still in possession of the stolen time-piece. The prisoner was yesterday arraigned before Justice DOWLING, as the Tombs, who held him for trial at the General Sessions.

HENRY MCCANN SIMPSON left his boarding-house, No. 143 Hudson-street, on Sunday, in a state of intoxication, without a hat. He was possessed no extra wearing apparel, and as a silk dress and muff belonging to ANNIE MORGAN, one of the occupants of the house, was missing, he was arrested. Justice DOWLING held the accused for trial on a charge of larceny.

WILLIAM O'BRIEN, No. 687 Washington-street, was brought up at the Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, before Justice COX, charged with a felonious assault on his wife, CATHERINE, on Saturday night, by striking her in the face with a goblet. The woman is in a dangerous condition, and the prisoner was remanded to await the result.

JAMES JOHNSON and JOSEPH SIMMONS were held to answer at the Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, for stealing an umbrella valued at $[illegible], from the store of JOHN B. COOPER, No. 1,186 Broadway.

PATRICK F. O'BRIEN was brought up at the Essex Market Police Court, yesterday, before Judge SCOTT, charged with setting fire to the premises No. 43 Catharine-street, inhabited by GEORGE FRANKLIN, on Sunday morning. The fire was discovered and extinguished before any damage was caused, and the prisoner was found concealed on the premises with matches in his hand. He was held to answer.

DANIEL RITNER and FRANCIS DEGAN were again arraigned at the Essex Market Police Court, yesterday morning, before Justice SCOTT, charged with robbery and feloniously assaulting JOSEPH JACKSON, No. 5 Amity-street, on the 19th inst., rendering him insensible from the effects of repeated blows with brass knuckles. In consequence of the continued illness of the prosecutor they were further remanded.

The remains of an unknown man were found yesterday in the East River, near Pier No. 36, foot of Jackson-street. There is no inquest or identification.
